

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

To the Memory of

JOHN COLET,

A FOUNDER

AS FAR-SIGHTED AS HE WAS GENEROUS,

A PRIEST

AS LIBERAL AS HE WAS DEVOUT,

A MAN

AS LOVEABLE AS HE WAS LOVING,

This Record is Dedicated

BY ONE WHO OWES ALL TO HIS MUNIFICENCE.

"A most far-sighted man, Colet saw that a nation's chief hope lay in having the rising generation trained in good principles."

Erasmus' Letter to Justus Jonas (Lupton's Translation, page 28).

"Even so with regard to a man's last will and testament, which lawyers call a just decision about what we should wish to have done after our death. In this case also we may say that it is not broken or infringed from having a better development given it after the testator's death by some godly man; and from more good being done by a better will than the dying man could have wished for. To act thus is not to infringe but to perfect a will: it is not to do away with it but to establish it. We believe that the testator also wished for what was best and most acceptable to God: and that when he died he was minded to have that last will of his made perfect in a better will if any such there should be."

Colet's Exposition of St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans, Ch. iii.

"From numbers of the tenets most generally received in the public schools (i.e. at the Universities) at the present day he widely dissented, and would at times discuss them among his private friends. When with others, he would keep his opinions to himself, for fear of coming to harm in two ways, that is to say, only making matters worse by his efforts, and sacrificing his own reputation."

Erasmus' Letter to Justus Jonas (Lupton's Translation, page 38).

"Wherefore I pray you al lytel babys and lytel children lerne gladly this lytel treatise and commende it dylygently unto your memories. Trustynge of this begynnyng ye shall procede and grow to parfyte lyterature and come at the last to be grete clarkes. And lyfte up your lytel whyte handes for me whiche prayeth for you to God."

Colet's "Lytell proheme" to his Accidence.

PREFACE.

BROTHER PAULINES,

I commend to your charity this my effort to perpetuate the records of our School.

In the year 1878 the present High Master suggested to me that it was desirable that the records of St. Paul's School should be published. After some consideration and with much diffidence I undertook to collect some materials for such a work, trusting that if our School could not again produce a Leland, a Camden, or a Strype, there might yet be found a Gale, a Knight, or a Fosbrooke to whose antiquarian zeal and learned leisure I might commit my collections.

It was thought however that the approaching crisis in our School's history would justify the publication of its records, and so I venture to intrust to your kindness the results of my work, undertaken in the leisure of a Schoolmaster. I am sensible that another ten years' labour would still have left the work imperfect, but I hope that the interest of the present juncture will excuse its production.

Originally it was only intended to publish the Captains' Registers (1806—1876) preserved in the School Library: to these after some consideration I resolved to prefix the Register of Names, dating from 1751, collected by Dr. Kynaston from the Presentations; together with the names of such earlier Paulines as were found in Knight's Life of Colet and other works.

The work was almost completed in this form when, by the kindness of the Mercers' Company, I obtained access to the Records of Admissions preserved in completeness at their Hall from 1748. This obliged me to rewrite the work from 1748 to 1806, and shortly afterwards I received information from other books in their possession, from which I collected the greater part of the facts which fill the first eighty pages of this book: my previous notes therefore on early Paulines had to be fitted in to this new matter. Let this rewriting be pleaded as an excuse for any inconsistencies which may be discovered between the earlier and later portions of the work.

In compiling the notes I have asked for help far and wide, and I beg to tender my thanks to all who have kindly furnished me with information. Above all, my thanks are due to the Court of the Mercers' Company, not only for their permission to use their Records, but also for the generosity which enabled me to send the book to the press, and which embellished it with its frontispiece.

My thanks are also due to the present HIGH MASTER for the interest which he has taken in the work, and the encouragement which he has given me to persevere in it; to the Rev. J. H. LUPTON, Surmaster, not only for contributing one of the Appendices from his store of Coletine learning, but also for his kindness in reading proofs and suggesting sources of information; to JOHN WATNEY, Esq., Clerk to the Mercers' Company, for assisting me in one of the Appendices, and for his unfailing readiness to help me in all matters of detail; to the authorities of the British Museum, to whose care

I was committed by J. WINTER JONES, Esq. (O.P.), late principal Librarian, especially EDWARD SCOTT, Esq., DORSET ECCLES, Esq. (O.P.), and FREEMAN DONOGHUE, Esq.; to the Bursars and Librarians of the Colleges at Oxford and Cambridge, who have been most kind in furnishing information, especially W. ALDIS WRIGHT, Esq., Bursar of Trinity College, Cambridge, to whose labours I owe the list of Perry Exhibitioners; to Sir ALBERT WOODS, Garter King-at-Arms; to J. E. GARDNER, Esq., and Rev. C. J. ROBINSON, the Editor of the Merchant Taylors' Registers. To these I must add the names of R. HARRIS, Esq., whose drawing of the exterior of the School is here reproduced; SAMUEL A. WALKER, Esq. (O.P.), who presented his photographs to the work; and JOHN B. CHUBB, Esq., who assisted me in the plans upon which the Appendix on the Site and Buildings is based; the printing and publication of the work have also been kindly undertaken by Old Paulines.

To conclude, while I regret the scantiness of our early records, I hope that I have collected sufficient to show how Colet's scholars have endeavoured to fulfil their daily prayer "ut bene pieque eruditi Ecclesiæ et Reipublicæ tandem utiles evadamus," and venture to express my belief that the generation of Paulines among whom this work is published will find in it a reason for strenuous effort to maintain the glory of their School, and while cheerfully accepting in the true spirit of their Founder such changes as are demanded in a course of nearly four centuries, will take care that there shall be no break in its career of producing "men qualified to serve God in Church and State."

ROBERT B. GARDINER.

ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL,
April, 1884.

PLAN OF THE WORK.

After the Introduction and the Fasti, the work is divided into Sections, according to the reign of each High Master.

The name of the High Master is followed by that of his Surmasters and other Assistants: then come the names of his reputed scholars. These are arranged as far as possible in chronological order, their position being determined more or less conjecturally from the date of birth or of admission to the University. Thus up to the year 1748 each High Master is credited with the boys who left the School under his Mastership, but from the commencement of the Registers he is credited with the boys whom he admitted.

Several times it has been necessary to insert lists of the names of those who are known to have been at the School before a certain period, but as to whose exact date it has been impossible to obtain a clue. The names also of pupils who are known to have been at the School under a certain High Master, but whose relative date is uncertain, will be found at the end of his reign.

Note that curious instances of mis-spelling have been generally preserved, such as Bayliall (Balliol), Woodham (Wadham), Polls (Paul's), but ordinary errors have been corrected without notice.

I desire to call particular attention to the use which I have made of two MSS. at the British Museum. (1) Additional 5885. A transcript of the list of all the Bachelors of Arts graduated at Cambridge from A.D. 1500 to A.D. 1716, in the collection of Mr. Cole. (2) Additional 19209 and 19210. Graduati Cantabrigienses, 1659—1823, with MS. additions, by D. E. Davy.

The School Arms are blazoned—sable, on a chevron between three hinds trippant argent as many annulets of the first, for Colet—whence the School colours, sable and argent or black and white.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS.

- ✓ A FACSIMILE OF THE COVER OF THE STATUTES OF THE SCHOOL, preserved at Mercers' Hall Frontispiece.

Presented to this work by the Court of the Mercers' Company.

This cover was painted in 1585 by an artist named Segar (see Fasti). It reproduces to a certain extent the monument of the Founder in St. Paul's Cathedral: but the artist has inserted a portrait of the Dean instead of the Bust; a true representation of the monument may be seen in Dugdale's St. Paul's (1656), and Knight's Life of Colet; but this picture retains one peculiarity of the Bust which disappears in the engraving, namely, the finger holding the pen: of this fact we are assured in spite of the engravings from the following entries in the Accounts 1588–89, “for mending the pen and new-making the finger and hand of Mr. Colet's tomb, twice, iiis. vijd.,” and again 1632–33, “to Edmund Kinsman for making a new finger of stone for the Statue of Dr. Colet in St. Paul's Cathedral, xs.” On this tomb the Mercers' Company spent a large sum for marbles, &c., in 1575–76, and they again repaired it in 1617–18 at the cost of xx lib. viijs. iid.¹

- ✓ A FACSIMILE OF THE PORTRAIT OF COLET attributed to HOLBEIN,

N.B.—Colet died in 1519, and Holbein first visited England in 1525.

¹ This Monument perished in the Fire, and Colet has now no monument in the Cathedral. A Fund which was originated by the late Dr. Kynaston with a view to placing a memorial of the Founder in St. Paul's Cathedral now amounts to £200; but double this sum is required before anything can be done. It is hoped that the publication of this Facsimile will stimulate Paulines to fresh efforts to place in the Cathedral a monument worthy of our Founder. The Trustees of the Fund are Baron Pollock and J. A. Kingdon, Esq.; the Hon. Secs. the Rev. F. Wallis, of Caius College, Cambridge, and the Editor.

John Colet. Dean of S^t Paul's

ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL.

INTRODUCTION.

ABOUT the close of the reign of Henry VII., John Colet, Dean of St. Paul's, son of Sir Henry Colet, citizen and mercer, twice Lord Mayor of London, commenced the work of educational reform in England by establishing a school in London, which, although originally founded in honour of "Christ Jesu in puericia, and of his blessyd Mother Mary," soon became known (probably from the situation of its buildings) as ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL. Colet, during his travels abroad, had perceived the importance of the Revival of Learning, and desired to equip the children of his own country to take their place by the side of the learned men of other nations. He declared in his Statutes (see Appendix B.) that he founded the School "for the children of all nacions and countres indifferently," and that his intent was "to increase knowledge and worshipping of God and our Lorde Crist Jesu, and good Cristen lyfe and maners," a purpose which he hoped to effect by encouraging the study of Greek (up to his time not taught in England), and of clean and chaste Latin, in contrast to the depraved Latin of the Schoolmen. "All the educational designs of the Reformers of Learning were carried out in the new institution. The old methods of instruction were superseded by fresh grammars composed by Erasmus and other scholars for its use. Lily, an Oxford student, who had studied Greek in the East, was placed at its head. Not only did the study of Greek creep gradually into the schools which existed, but the example of Colet was followed by a crowd of imitators. More grammar schools, it has been said, were founded in the latter years of Henry VIII. than in the three centuries before. The grammar schools of Edward VI. and of Elizabeth, in a word, the system of middle class education, which by the close of the century had changed the very face of England, were the direct results of Colet's foundation of St. Paul's."¹

THE BUILDINGS.

He placed his school on the site apparently of an older school at the east end of St. Paul's Cathedral. In those days the Cathedral, a magnificent structure in the Gothic style, stood within a walled and gated inclosure: the busy traffic which now circles round the Churchyard, passed through Old Change on the east, Carter Lane on the south, Pater Noster Row on the north, and Creed Lane and Ave Maria Lane on the west. We know but little of Colet's Building, which was finished in 1510, except that Strype, who was educated in the first and lived to see the second building, tells us, that after the Fire the School "was built up again much after the same manner and proportion it was before, together with the library and an house on the south end thereof for the Second Master, whose dwelling before and from the first founding of the School was in the Old Change adjoining to the said School." The original building consisted of four parts (as described by Erasmus), the first or porch for catechumens; a great schoolroom divided by a curtain; and a little chapel for divine service, together with chambers for the High Master and Surmaster.

This building perished in the Fire of London (1666), and was shortly replaced by another, which stood within the memory of living Paulines. It consisted of a large schoolroom with a flat roof, and at the end was a room (described as small and dark) which served as a library. There was also a house at each end, that on the north for the High Master, that on the south for the Surmaster, while the Chaplain (or Usher) was provided with a house in Old Change. The rearrangement of thoroughfares, which brought the stream of traffic from east to west down Cheapside through the Churchyard to Ludgate Hill, materially interfered with the quiet and seclusion of the School. The building of 1670, in spite of various repairs, was found to be in a dangerous condition in 1814; and on the occasion of the visit of the Allied Sovereigns to the city, its roof was supported with shores which were not subsequently removed till about 1823, when the Mercers' Company, having acquired some additional ground to the North, proceeded to pull down the old buildings and set up the present ones, consisting of a large schoolroom over a cloister with two houses at either end, whereby the Fourth Master, who had been added to the teaching staff some twenty years before, and had hitherto had an allowance for a house, acquired an official residence. The whole School continued to be taught in one room till 1854, when Dr. Kynaston, the High Master, who had long ceased to take boarders, gave up to the School the boarding-rooms of his house, whereby the size of the Library was doubled, so that it could be used as the High Master's Class Room, and the Upper Class Room was brought into use for the Fifth and Sixth Classes, then taught by the Surmaster; subsequently also the Lower Class Room was occupied by the Third Master.

THE GOVERNORS.

Colet wisely intrusted the management of his new foundation to the Mercers' Company, of which his father had been a member : and under their care his school survived the storm of the Reformation, which swept away so many endowments. For more than three centuries and a half, under their careful and judicious government, the School continued to fulfil the purpose of its founder, supplying men, as this work I hope will prove, qualified to serve God in Church and State. By the careful management of its property its income was raised to £10,000 a year. In accordance with the Founder's Statutes the Mercers appointed annually two Surveyors—the Surveyor Accountant (who of late years was usually the outgoing Master of the Company) and the Surveyor Assistant (the Master of the Company for the year)—to manage the affairs of the School. But on the 24th of March, 1876, a new scheme, made by the Endowed Schools Commissioners (1869), received her Majesty's sanction, whereby although the management of the estates remains with the Mercers the government of the School is transferred to a body of twenty-two Governors, of whom the Mercers appoint nine, together with their Master and three Wardens for the year, and the remaining nine are appointed equally by the Universities of Oxford, Cambridge, and London. This arrangement seems to carry out Colet's wish expressed in the statutes that "the Wardens and assistences of the felowshipp of the Mercers may adde and diminish into his boke and supply in it every defeaute with suych other counsel as they shall call unto theme, good litterid and lernyd menne" (see Appendix B.).

THE MASTERS.

Colet provided that his scholars should be taught by two masters, the High Master and the Surmaster: he also desired that they should employ the assistance of the Chaplain, if he were found qualified. This arrangement appears to have held good for nearly three hundred years, the High Master teaching the Upper Classes while the Surmaster, assisted by the Chaplain (or Usher), took charge of the younger boys. In the time of Thicknesse and the early part of Roberts' High Mastership, about one half of the School was under the Chaplain in the First and Second Classes; another quarter under the Surmaster in the Third and Fourth; while the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Classes, under the High Master, were barely a quarter of the School. At length, however, under Dr. Roberts, a more even distribution was made, and he obtained the services of an Assistant or Fourth Master, who relieved him of the Fifth and Sixth Classes. This arrangement lasted till 1854, when, on the death of Mr. Roberts the Fourth Master, Mr. Carver, the then Surmaster, took over the Fifth and Sixth, the new Fourth Master, Mr. Hudson, taking the Third and Fourth: and when, on the resignation of Mr. Cooper, Mr. Hudson became Third Master (Chaplain or Usher), he retained charge of his Classes, the new Fourth Master taking the First and Second Classes.

THE STUDIES.

Colet founded his School to give instruction in Latin and Greek; and except that Writing and Arithmetic appear to have been taught to some selected boys during the eighteenth century, nothing beyond Latin, Greek, and Hebrew was taught in the School for over three hundred years. Soon after the appointment of Dr. Kynaston (1838) an Arithmetic and Mathematical Master was for the first time added to the Staff, and about 1853 French was introduced as a subject of study. Hebrew was taught in the School by Langley (1640-57); and Strype, writing after the Fire, speaks of the boys as then instructed in Greek, Latin, Hebrew, and sometimes other Oriental languages. Pepys heard the "head Forms posed in Latin, Greek, and Hebrew" in 1662; and in 1710 Hebrew was among the subjects offered at the Apposition by the Seventh and Eighth Classes.

THE SCHOLARS.

Colet offered his scholars a higher education than any which existed in his day; no child was to be admitted who could not read and write; and none were to be retained in the School but such as were likely to make progress. It seems, then, that Colet, while welcoming the poor scholar to his school, expected his foundation to be used by the upper class of citizens. By the children of these the School was mainly occupied till men ceased to reside in the neighbourhood of the School. There have at times been non-foundationers admitted, and the reputation of some of the High Masters, notably Gale (1672-1697), attracted boarders other than the sons of citizens. In 1748, when the Registers begin, the School appears to have been going down under the High Mastership of Dr. Charles (1737-1748), for Mr. Thicknesse (in whose first year of office it rapidly filled again), reports that only thirty-eight boys were on the foundation a few months after his appointment. This may have been owing to some financial difficulties under which the Mercers' Company (and with them the School) appear to have been suffering at that time, which are described at large in the Report of the Commissioners of Endowed Charities (1820). The head boy in each class was called the Captain; the head of the Eighth Class was the Captain of the School;—this post was usually held for a year, and the subjoined list of Captains will be found a roll of not undistinguished names (see Appendix D.). From the earliest times (1564) boys who reached the top of the School were sent to the Universities by the liberality of the Governors, and after a time in addition to these (who are called Pauline Exhibitioners in the following pages) others were sent to Trinity College, Cambridge, by the liberality of Viscount Campden, whose benefaction, dating in 1629, now produces £1,000 a year. These latter are called Campden Exhibitioners; the successive phases in the management of this endowment will be found in Appendix E. 2.

Other exhibitions were subsequently founded in Cambridge, at Trinity and Corpus Christi Colleges, which will also be found described in the Appendix (E. 4, 6, 7). The present century witnessed the institution of the prizes for Composition known as Governors' Prizes, to which several endowments have been added in the last thirty years.

THE RECORDS.

It only remains to explain the authorities from whence this book is drawn. The early part is simply a compilation from various sources, such as the Accounts of the School and the Acts of Court preserved among the archives of the Mercers' Company, and the lists of exhibitors (Campden, Perry, Sykes, &c.), to which has been added information collected from works in which St. Paul's School is alluded to or described. The lists from 1748 to 1806 are printed from the Registers of the Admissions of Scholars, which are preserved at Mercers' Hall and have been kindly placed at my disposal by the Court. From 1806 to 1876 a record of admissions was kept by the Captain in the School Library : and from this my lists are printed ; the Christian names of the parents which the Captain did not record, being added from the Mercers' Hall Registers. There does exist in the School Library a very imperfect record of admissions from 1751 to 1806, but it was made by the late Dr. Kynaston from the volumes of presentations which exist in the library, and is of no independent authority.

It is much to be regretted that the registers mentioned in the Fasti under dates 1524 and 1712 have not been discovered.

1549. Oct. 8—~~Thomas Freeman~~, ~~High Master~~, vice Jones, deceased.

¹ (A.) signifies an extract from the Accounts of St. Paul's School, preserved at Mercers' Hall. The accounts run from Michaelmas to Michaelmas, so that each account contains the latter half of one year and the former half of the next. Each extract, therefore, has a double date, unless the occurrence can be fixed more exactly from internal evidence.

1554. Jan. 25—Procession through the City, in which the children of St. Paul's School took part (Stow).

„ March 8—Procession repeated (Stow).

The following entries in the Accounts indicate the effect of the accession of Queen Mary :—

1553-4. "Two candlesticks for the chappell, 3s. 4d."

1554-5. "Paid for two altar clothes, two towelles, and corporous (sic) cloth and mass book, 41s. 1d."

„ "Vestment, rearedore and foredore and covering for the altar . . . , 53s. 4d."

„ "For waxe spent in the chapell of the Schole this year, 3s. 4d."

1555-6. "For a narrow wighte clothe for an albe and linen, } 7s. 7d."

„ "Two elles of Holland for an altar cloth,

„ "Waxe for the chapell, 8s."

1556-7. "For waxe, 6s."

„ "The picture of Jesus set up agayne" (M.).

„ "Paid to Dyrricke Cure, Carver, for new making the picture of Jesus in the Schole, 20s."

„ "Paid for payenting and gilding the same picture, 20s."

1559. John Cook, High Master, vice Freeman, retired.

„ Address to Queen Elizabeth on her Accession.

„ "Paid for the hyre of a blewe cloth for their standing ayonst the coronacion, 3s. 4d."

1559-60. "To be allowed for the fall of money that was lost in testernes that fell from 6d. to 4d., £10 10s. 7d." (A.).

1561-2. "Paid for taking away the pictur out of the Scole where the Master sayeth prayers, 8d."

1564. June 2—It was resolved that Exhibitions should be given to two Scholars, one at each University, especially to promote the advancement of the scholars of St. Paul's School. The "articles" or terms on which the Exhibitions were to be held, drawn up by the Bishop of London (Edmund Grindall), were laid before the Court of the Company, July 26th, 1564. The first Exhibitioner was elected on September 26th. The Exhibitions were fixed, to be of the value of £5 per annum, January 9th, 1565 (Appendix F. 1).

1572. The Company obtained judgment (which was entered in the Exchequer in Trinity Term, Anno. Eliz. 15) against Mr. Knevet who had laid an information against them for "concealed chauntry lands" (i.e. Colet's endowment for a chaplain), but who failed in his "profes": nevertheless by the mediation of Sir Walter Mildmay and others, "out of their meere liberalitye," they gave Mr. Knevet

40 lib. sterling. This trouble recurs frequently in subsequent years. In 1579–80, the Company again entered an appearance in the Exchequer on the same complaint; and in 1580, a fine of £300 was recorded against the Company for the same matter; but it does not appear to have been paid out of St. Paul's School funds, though there are further entries on the same subject in 1582–83 (A.).

1573. July 28—The boys may have license to play every Thursday afternoon, "so that one of every of the forms in the Upper School by turn one after another first make an epistle to their Master for the same" (M.).
- " Christmas—~~William Malym~~, ~~High Master~~, vice Cook.
- " In this year "a shedde or lyttel house of tymber, now at the East end of St. Paul's Church under St. Dunstan's Chapel, where the children's pissing place¹ stood," was repaired and made into a residence "for the pore man, the porter of the Schole, to be more readier to attend upon the said Schole and to keep it clean."
1574. It was agreed between the Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's and Jesus College, Cambridge, that two of the Scholars on the foundation of Dr. Reston should be nominated by the Dean and Chapter, the Candidates to be chosen from St. Paul's School, or, in defect, from any other School.
1575. Oct. 29—The morrow after Simon and Jude, Mr. Malym's Scholar made an oration on a "skaffolde" set up at Paul's School, when Mr. Ambrose Nicholas, then Lord Mayor, returned from Westminster (A.).
- 1575-6. A grant is made to John Meeke, chief bellringer of Pawles, towards his paines in bringing to light an old "pervy of easement" (i.e. privy) "that some time longede to the Children of Pawles Schole,² and also for the easement of all inhabitants thereabouts." From subsequent entries it seems that Meeke became involved in a lawsuit with Abraham Veale,³ bookbinder, who had taken the said "pervy" into his shop, and in 1577–8 Meeke received a further grant, but it does not appear whether he was successful in his suit.
1578. William Malym delivers an oration (in Latin) to Duke John Casimir.
1579. July 28—It was resolved "that such as have the reversions of Scholarships be examined at Polls" (Paul's).

² See, however, Colet's Statutes (Appendix B.), under the heading "The Children." A view of the pervy may be seen in an engraving in the Crace Collection representing King James I. and his Court attending a sermon at Paul's Cross on March 26, 1620. The brick cesspool belonging to it still remains in situ, and was uncovered when the gardens were lately made.

³ In 1556, Abraham Veale, at the sign of the Lamb in Paul's Churchyard, printed Robynson's translation of More's Utopia.

1581. Nov. 8—John Harrison, High Master, vice Malym, resigned.
- „ “A number of our Company assembled, with Mr. Deane of Powel's (Alex^r. Nowel) and other learned men, for the tryall of the said Schole Master's sufficiency” (A). On this occasion “Mr. Wilkinson, reader of the Greek Lector at Cambridge,” was the defeated candidate for the High Mastership, and received a present for his expenses.
- „ The first mention of the Apposition. “Paid for dinner at the Examination of the Scholars at Candlemas (February 2)” (A).
1584. Thomas Gyles, Master of the Quiristers in St. Paul's Cathedral, is directed to instruct them in the Catechism, Writing, and Music; and then suffer them to resort to St. Paul's School that they may learn the principles of Grammar: and after, as they shall be forwards, learn the said Catechism in Latin, which before they learned in English, and other good books taught in the said School. (Churton's Life of Nowel, page 190).
- 1585-6. The copy of the Statutes,¹ now preserved at Mercers' Hall, was rebound, as appears by these entries:—
- „ Paid “for a cover of vellom for Mr. Collette's book of ordenaunce wherein his own handwriting is: the said Mr. Collette's picture is now newly made on the outside, and for stringe of silk and for binding the same, 6s.”
- „ Paid to Segar “for drawing the picture of Mr. Dr. Collette upon the cover of vellom of the book of ordenaunce very fair in cullors, 40s.”
- 1588-9. “The tenement at the end of Poules Church (see under 1572-3) has now been converted into a house for the Under Usher; in the following year this house was beaten down with the fall of a stone (“a pynnakell”) from Poull's Church by the great wynd (A).²
1592. Feb. 5—The dinner was held at Mercers' Hall instead of at the Schole “for that two or three had died of the sickness lately.”
- „ An inventory was made of the implements at the School, “both before Harrison's time and since bought.”
1594. Speech of the boys of St. Paul's School to the Masquers of Gray's Inn.

² 1589. The fift of January, about fife of the clocke in the euening, before the Twelfth day, began a great and terrible Tempest of Wind in the South-West, which continued with great vehemency till about 11 of the clocke of the same night; this in the City of London blew the Tiles off men's houses, and overthrewe many chimnies, and caused many men feare the overthrow of their houses: one of the three West gates of Saint Pauls Church, to wit, that next to the Bishoppes Palace, was broken with the bolts, barres, and lockes of the same gate, so that it was blowne over. (Stow's Annals, London, 1631.)

1595. Feb.—“The audit dinner for the accompt was holden at Mercers’ Hall this year, for that Harrison still kept possession of the School House.”

The details of this quarrel are preserved among the records at Mercers’ Hall. “Proceedings in the Court of Chancery, Richard Smith and Francis Herring (1596), Schoolmasters, against the Company; also letters of sundry Honble personages, and said Harrison’s appeal into the Archers (sic) and Bill of Articles to my Lord of Canterbury, with the Company’s severall answers to every of the same.”

From the following entries it seems that while the dispute went on the scholars were transferred to the care of Mulcaster:—

- 1596-7. “Paid to Christopher Johnson for his paines in teaching under Mr. Mulcaster till Lady Day in Lent last” (A.).
 „ “Paid to John Bevane for reward for teaching the scholars of Poules one quarter under Mr. Moncaster in Mylk Street” (A.).
 „ “To Mr. Mansfield, late Mr. Moncaster’s ussher” (A.).
1596. Aug. 5—~~Richard Mulcaster, High Master~~, vice Harrison, removed.
 „ March 4—“The assistants and learned men” met at Mercers’ Hall to establish orders for the Schole.
1600. The Usher’s house was raised and compensation paid to “Thomasyn Rode, widdowe, for hurtes done” thereby to her house.
 „ “Given to Mulcaster to distribute among the boys at the apposition, 5s.” Apparently this is the first “Distribution of Prizes.” The sum distributed was increased to 10s. in 1601, and 20s. in 1602: and at this it remained till 1639-40, when it appears to cease.
1602. June 24—Amending Ordinances made by the Court of Assistants of the Mercers’ Company signed by “Mr. Fleming, the King’s Solicitor, and Mr. Sergeant Foster,” to whom payments were made for their counsel in 1602-3. (See Appendix B. 2.)
1603. Oration of one of Mr. Mulcaster’s Scholars to King James I.
1608. March 10—~~Alexander Gill, High Master~~, vice Mulcaster, resigned.
1612. The Exhibitions to the University were increased in value from £5 to £10.
- 1614-15. “Paid to Pawle Jackson for setting up Dr. Collette’s picture at the upper end of the Schole, £3 10s.”
- 1617-18. The Scholars of Pawles made a play in Mercers’ Hall on quarter day.

1619. Sept. 10—The boys of Paul's acted a play in Mercers' Hall at the Wardens' Feast.
1620. The House at the East end of Powles is pulled down "by order of the Lords of the Privy Council." From this time till the Fire the Under Usher has an allowance (£3 6s. 8d.) for house rent.
- 1626-7. "Paid to the citty waites for Music at the play that was acted by the Schollers, 5s."
1629. Oct. 13—Foundation of the Campden Exhibitions by the will of Sir Baptist Hicks, Viscount Campden. Brought before the Court November 21 and December 3, 1632. (Appendix E. 2.)
1635. Nov. 18—~~Alexander Gill~~ (Junior), ~~High Master~~, vice Gill, deceased.
1640. Jan. 7—~~John Langley~~, ~~High Master~~, vice Gill, "displaced."
1644. No Exhibitions were paid in this year, nor in 1645 nor 1646, but payments were resumed in 1647.
- 1645-6. During some part of this year the Schollers were taught in the Convocation House in Paules (A.).
1646. "Eight paires of gloves for the Scholars who made orations, 12s." (A.), and in the next year "Sixteen paires."
1657. Sept. 14—~~Samuel Cromleholme~~, ~~High Master~~, vice Langley, deceased.
1659. Sir Richard Wood's Scholarship founded at St. John's College, Cambridge. (Appendix E. 3.)
- 1659-60. In this year certain quit-rents, which, since 1649, have been entered as "due to the Commonwealth," are again entered as "due to the King's Majesty" (A.).
1660. Jan. 25—The Feast of the Scholars was first held. (Appendix H.)
- 1663-4. "To Mrs. Segood in lieu of a book of the orders of Paul's which she did (give) to the Company, £1" (A.).
- 1664-5. Four years was fixed for the time for Scholars to be in the School before they sue for Exhibitions.
1665. No Apposition holden by reason of the great visitation of the plague.
- „ On Midsummer Day the School was dismissed, to be reopened when it seemed good to the Surveyor-Accountant.
- „ Mr. Cromleholme wrote a Schedule of Books in the School Study.
1666. Sept. 6 and 7—The First School Buildings perished in the Fire of London.
- „ Oct. 19—The School was ordered to cease, the buildings being down and the scholars scattered (M.). All Exhibitions were to be paid up to Michaelmas, 1666.

- 1666-70. During this interval the School appears to have been closed. The three Masters received their bare salaries, according to the Founder's directions, on promising to return when the School opened: meanwhile they might find other employment. In the accounts of 1666-7 a quarter or half-year's Exhibition only is paid to each Exhibitioner, and all Exhibitions cease till Lady Day, 1678-9.
- 1666-70. All entries in the Accounts refer, firstly to the clearing away rubbish (1666-7), secondly to the purchase of some additional ground and tenements in Old Change (1667-8), and thirdly to the expenses of rebuilding (1668-9 and 1669-70).
1670. (Schola) "Restaurata feliciter" post incendium (Inscription).
1671. March 28—It was ordered that the School should open the next week after Easter week (M.).
1672. It was resolved that the Exhibitions in the gift of the Mercers' Company (Lady North's and Mrs. Robinson's) should in preference be given to boys of St. Paul's or of Mercers' Chapel School. This rule was renewed February 17, 1684.
- „ Aug. 5—Thomas Gale, High Master, vice Cromleholme, deceased.
1674. Jan. 25—The Scholars' Feast revived (after ten years' interval).
- 1676-7. The sum of £110 was paid for a house in Old Change, which was "laid into" the High Master's house.
- The following entry refers to Monmouth's rebellion:—
1685. "Allowed Henry Somner, Esq., the Company's proportion of the charge for finding a soldier for the Wathes farme in time of the late rebellion in the West, £3 10s." (A.).
- 1687-8. "For new laying all the front of the Schole and Scholemaster's houses, the most part of it now Purbeck Stone within the posts, £18 3s." (A.).
- 1693-4. "For convex lights at St. Paul's School, 12s."

LIST OF MASTERS AND SCHOLARS.

1512—1522

High Master¹ WILLIAM LILY.

Born at Odyham, Hants, circa 1466; Demy of Magdalen College, Oxford, 1486, B.A.; visited Jerusalem and made some stay in Rhodes where he acquired the Greek tongue, thence visited Rome; returned to England and settled in London where he taught Grammar, Poetry, and Rhetoric; selected by Colet as first High Master; died 1522. He was the joint author of a Latin Grammar (Brevissima Institutio) which remained the basis of all Latin grammars in use till the present generation. He is probably identical with William Lily, Vicar of Holcote, Northampton, 1492–95.

Surmaster 1512 THOMAS PERCY, otherwise PERSY.

Surmaster 1515 MAURICE BIRCHINSHAW.

Called Master Morris in the "Accounts." "In 1511 (December 11th) M. B., a scholar of the faculty of Rhetoric, was admitted (at Oxford) to inform in the faculty of Grammar. He taught in the School adjoining Magdalen College great gate. In 1515, July 2, M. B. the celebrated grammarian was admitted B.C.L. He was afterwards Prebendary of Wells" (A.O.). Possibly he was Mauritius to whom Constable addresses the following epigram:—

Nunc scio, Maurici, placuit tibi culta vetustas
Quod delegisti fertile gymnasium.
Nempe virum expectat te clara Britannia talem
Qualis erat Romæ Tullius ipse suæ.

Surmaster 1517 JOHN RITWISE.

Subsequently High Master 1522—1532 (which see).

Chaplain.

There is no record of any payment to a chaplain till 1523–24. Probably these duties were supplied under the immediate direction of the Founder up to that time.

¹ A complete list of the High Masters and Sub (Sur) Masters, from 1512 to 1637, is found appended to one of the copies of Colet's statutes preserved at Mercers' Hall. Whenever a change in the tenant of either office occurs, the name of the tenant of the other is usually repeated.

Thus—

1512. Willm Lilie, high Mr. placed by y^e Founder.

Thomas Persy, Submaster.

1515. Maurice Birchinchaw, Sub-mr., &c.

but afterwards

1559. John Cook, chosen High-mr.

James Jacob, Sub-mr.

1561. John Cook, High-mr.

Christopher Holden, Sub-mr.

Possibly this is the copy of the Statutes for writing which Mulcaster was paid 3s. 4d. in 1598–99.

As I have discovered no notice at Mercers' Hall of the appointment of Masters for the School before 1522, I am inclined to think that the first three Surmasters were appointed by the Founder.

SCHOLARS.

Thomas Lupset,

Son of William Lupset, goldsmith of London; born about 1495; said to have been supported by Colet (to whom he is said to have acted as amanuensis) at Pembroke Hall, Cambridge; accompanied Richard Paice on his embassy to Venice, 1515; took his B.A. at Paris; and returning to England, 1519, settled at Corpus Christi College, Oxford, where he read the Rhetoric and Humanity lecture founded by Wolsey. In 1521 he was admitted M.A. of Oxford, and read Wolsey's Greek lecture. In 1523 he was admitted to the Chapel of St. Nicholas, in the parish of Stanford-le-hope, Essex. The same year he was at Padua with Pole (afterwards Cardinal), whose acquaintance he had made in 1515. Rector of Great Mongeham, Kent, 1528, and also of St. Martin, Ludgate; Rector of Cheriton, Hants, 1530; and Prebendary of Ruscombe (Sarum). He died of consumption in 1530, and was buried at St. Alphege, London Wall. He was the author of Epistolæ variae, Basle, 1520; A treatise of Charite, London, 1529. Two works of his were posthumously printed, An exhortation to yonge men, perswadyng them to walk in the pathes way that leadeth to honestye and goodnes, written to a frende of his, by Thomas Lupsete, Londoner, London, 1530, and A compendious and a very frutefull treatise teaching the way of Dyeing well, London, 1534.

Edward North,

Born in 1496; son of Roger, citizen and mercer of London; proceeded to Peterhouse, Cambridge, but did not graduate; studied the law and became one of the King's Serjeants in 1537. Henceforth till the accession of Elizabeth, he plays an important part in the history of England. He was summoned to Parliament as Baron North of Kirtling, in 1554; died 1564. He is reckoned as a Benefactor by the University of Cambridge and by Peterhouse. He was ancestor of the present Baroness North and the Earl of Guilford.

Anthony Denny,

Born 1500-1; entered St. John's College, Cambridge; became a gentleman of the bedchamber to Henry VIII. and finally King's Remembrancer and Groom of the Stole; was knighted before 1546; was one of the executors of the king's will; died 1550. He was a great benefactor of the School of Sedbergh, York.

William Paget,

Son of a Serjeant-at-Law in London; said to have gone to Trinity Hall, but apparently did not graduate; entered the household of Gardiner, afterwards Bishop of Winchester; went thence to the University of Paris. In 1532 he entered the service of king Henry VIII., under whom he held various offices and was appointed one of the executors of the king's will. During the reign of Edward VI. he attached himself first to the side of Somerset, and on his fall to that of Northumberland. He was made K.G. in 1546-47, and called to the House of Lords as Baron Paget of Beaudesert in 1551. He was on the Privy-Council of Queen Jane, but was one of the first to welcome Queen Mary's accession. He retired from public life on the accession of Queen Elizabeth, and died in 1563. His monument was erected in Lichfield Cathedral. He was High Steward of the University of Cambridge in 1546 and again in 1554. He filled one of the foremost places in the history of England for nearly twenty years: his descendant is now Marquess of Anglesey.

John Leland, otherwise Leyland,

Born in London about 1506; graduated B.A. (Lelond) at Christ's College, Cambridge, 1522, whence he removed to All Souls' College, Oxford; was sent to Paris with an exhibition by Henry VIII. where he acquired the friendship of Budæus and other famous men of the time. In 1530 he was admitted Rector of Poppeling in the Marches of Calais, but serving the King as Librarian had licence for non-residence. In 1533 he was appointed King's Antiquarian. For six years he travelled over England pursuing his researches, and in 1546 presented the King with a scheme of his great work under the title of a New Year's gift. In 1542 he became Rector of Haseley, Oxon.; and in 1543 he was made a Canon of King's College, Oxford, (now Christ Church); he was also Prebendary of Sarum, an appointment which he perhaps received in exchange for his Canonry. In 1550 he lost his reason, and dying in 1552 was buried in the church of St. Michael le Quern. His works were not published in his lifetime, but his MSS. are mostly preserved at Oxford. His Commentarii de Scripturibus Britannicis was edited in 1709 by Anthony Hall; his Itinerary in 1710, &c., by Thomas Hearne; his Collectanea de rebus Britannicis in 1715 by Hearne.

John Clement,

He was taken from St. Paul's School by Sir Thomas More. He read Wolsey's Rhetoric Lecture at Corpus Christi College, Oxford, 1519; and also his Greek Lecture, "being singularly seen in the Greek tongue." He became tutor to Margaret More (Roper). Being opposed to the Reformation, he retired abroad during the reign of Edward VI., and though he returned to England in the reign of Mary, he exiled himself again after the accession of Elizabeth, and died at Mechlin, in Brabant, 1572. He was a member of the College of Physicians: see his character in More's Epistle to Peter Giles in the Utopia.

Robert Pursglove,

Alias Sylvester, a native of Tideswell, in Derbyshire, was maintained by his uncle, William Bradshaw, at St. Paul's School for nine years; from thence he went to St. Mary Overies and subsequently to Corpus Christi College, Oxford, where he remained fourteen years; thence he became Prior of Guisborough, York, which post he resigned on the dissolution of the monasteries in 1540. He was subsequently Suffragan Bishop of Hull and died in 1579, being buried at Tideswell, where his epitaph exists on a brass. He founded in 1560 a free grammar school at Tideswell; and at Guisborough he founded the Jesus School and also almshouses for six men and six women in 1561.

Richardus Vernamus,

Pauline Scholæ alumnus. Author of an epigram printed at the end of Rudimenta Grammatices—

Quisquis adest Latiam cupiens contexere linguam
Nostraque dulciloquis verba referre modis
Hunc emat, hunc tenero perstringat corde libellum
Pollice quem facili Lilius ediderat.

Also of the following epigram, appended to Lily's De Generibus Nominum et Verborum præteritis ac supinis Regula, Antwerp, 1538—

En parvo sumptu parvoque volumine prodit
Parvus non parvo (sic) scriptus ab arte liber.
Hunc emat et parva (sic) sibi quilibet ære puellus
Comparet et parvo tempore multa sciet.

RICHARDI VERNAMI CARMEN.

The two following are sometimes assigned to St. Paul's School:—

John Constable,

Son of Roger C.; born in London, and educated under William Lily; afterwards at Byham Hostel, Oxford, B.A. 1511, M.A. 1515. He published Joannis Constabilii, Londinensis, Artium Professoris Epigrammata apud inclityi Londini urbem. Londini MCXX (ex officina Richardi Pynsonis nonis Septembris). Among his epigrams the following refer to Lily—

AD LILIUM PRÆCEPTOREM.

Præceptor facunde tuas quis dicere laudes
Quas meritis multis es quæat ecce modis:
Nunc seris in nostris cultissima semina campis,
Maturasque refert pingue solum segetes.
Ipse puer teneris a te enutritus ab annis
Collegi ex auro (? arvo) semina pulchra tuo:
Ergo magis nostro crescant si gramina campo,
Nunc danda est, Lili, gloria tota tibi.

IN BOSSUM LILIO-MASTIGEM.

Heus subito tacuit, vidit sua carmina Bossus
Quum viciis toties stulta scatere malis.
Quumque pari nequeat conatu vincere vatem,
Suppudet et versus jam negat esse suos.
Euome de angineo libeat si pectore virus:
Nil nocet egregio perfida lingua viro.

Thomas Nightingale,

("Vir lepidus et poeta," as Balæus saith) B.C.L. of Oxford, 1515; was educated under William Lily, but there is no ground for supposing that he was a pupil of St. Paul's School; author of De obitu Joannis Coleti Carmen; In mortem Gul. Liliæ elegia.

1522—1532

High Master

JOHN RITWYSE.

December 10, 1522.

Rightwyse, Ritwis, Rightewes (in Latin, Righeuus and Justus); born at Sall (Saul, Sawl) in Norfolk. Educated at Eton, whence he went to King's College, Cambridge; B.A. 1518; was Surmaster in St. Paul's School, 1517-22, and married Dionysia, daughter of William Lily, who survived him. Author of the tragedy of Dido which he acted with his scholars before Cardinal Wolsey; Polydore Vergil speaks of him as "Doctrinæ et morum magister." In January, 1531, occurs the entry in the Privy Purse Expenses of Henry VIII: "Paid to Rightwise, Schole Master of Poules by the king's commandment, xxii. lib. ix. s." (probably for the King's Scholar, George Fraunce, see below).¹ He was removed from his office November 10th, 1531, for neglect of his duties.

Surmaster 1522 RICHARD JONES.

Subsequently High Master 1532-49 (which see).

Chaplain 1523 SIR JOHN THOMSON.²

The first Chaplain: this office not having been filled up till 1523. He received for the rent of his chamber ten shillings per annum, subsequently increased to thirteen shillings and fourpence.

Chaplain 1531 SIR WILLIAM DYNGLEY.

February 27.

SCHOLARS.

George Fraunce,

It appears from the Privy Purse Expenses of Henry VIII. that in 1531 and 1532 payments were made to the School Master of Powles for G. F. the King's Scholar, and in July of 1532 "for the Exhibucion of G. F."

Nicholas Fraunce,

Also in September and December of 1532 payments were made for N. F.

¹ It is from this entry that I proceed to infer that the similar payments made in 1531 and 1532 to the "School Master of Powles," were made for boys at Colet's School, rather than at the Cathedral School, the very existence of which as a place of good education at this date seems to require further demonstration. And if it be granted that Colet's Foundation is meant by "Powles School" in 1531, (as it certainly was in 1527,) I venture to claim as Paulines, Harrison's "Children of Pawles School" (1544), Stow's "Children of S. Pauls School" (1554), and Nowel's "Scholars of Poull's Scholle" (1569 and 1573).

² The title of "Sir" (Dominus) was commonly given to the clergy (possibly especially to Chantry Priests) before the Reformation. Compare Shakespeare's Sir Hugh Evans, Sir Oliver Martext, Sir Nathaniel, and Sir Topaz.

1532—1549

High Master RICHARD JONES.November 11, 1532.

Sur Master 1522—1532. "Deinde secutus est Richardus Jonys" (Polydore Vergil Hist. Angl. xxvi.). He died 1549.

Surmaster 1532 JAMES JACOB.November 16.

"(Jakobbe) married Dionysia, daur. of W. Lily, and widow of John Ritwyse.
 (1560) the xvjth day of January was bered at Sant Aus(tins) Jakobe the husser of Powlles Skolle: at ys berehyng were a xx. clarkes syngyng ym to the chyrche and (there) was a sermon" (Diary of Henry Machyn). This entry is confirmed by the Register of St. Augustine's parish.

Chaplain 1532 SIR WILLIAM DYNGLEY (continued).

In 1543 Sir W. D.'s name occurs again as Chaplain, probably from an error of the writer.

Chaplain 1542 SIR JOHN BENSON.

Sir John Benson dyde 18th day of Auguste 1552 (A).

SCHOLAR.William Harrison,

Born 18 April, 1534. He says in his Chronology under date 1544: "The children of Pawles Schole, whereof I was one at that time, were enforced to buy those bookes"
 (i.e. "the Letany in thenglish towng"); subsequently he went to Westminster School, and thence to Oxford where he graduated; in 1569 he was made B.D. of Cambridge being then an M.A. of Oxford of seven years' standing; he was Chaplain to Sir William Brooke, Lord Cobham; Rector of Radwinter, Essex, 1558-59—1593; Vicar of Wimbish, Essex, 1570-71—1581; Prebendary of Windsor, 1586; died about February 11, 1593-94; Author of Chronology.

1549—1559

High Master THOMAS FREEMAN.October 8, 1549.

On March 22, 1545, he was granted the reversion of the High Mastership, being then Master of the Mercers' Chapel School, in preference to one, Gryndall, (possibly Edmund Grindal, subsequently Archbishop of Canterbury,) who had made application on January 2, 1545, under favour of the Queen's grace for the room of the High Mastership. Stow says of him, "who also spent ten years in the laborious employment of the education of youth, and then came into his province John Cook." On July 17, 1559, he was warned "to avoide from his office for insufficiency of learning and lack of the Greek tongue."

See 1532—1549. He received a reward by reason that he was not made Master after Ric. Jones' death £6 13s. 4d.

*ChaplainSIR JOHN BENSON (continued).

See 1532—1549.

SCHOLARS.

William Whitaker,

Born in 1547; nephew of Alexander Nowel, Dean of St. Paul's; first educated at his birthplace, Burnley, in Lancashire; subsequently placed by his uncle at St. Paul's School, whence he proceeded to Trinity College, Cambridge, where he was a Scholar and B.A. in 1567; Fellow in 1569; M.A. 1571. He became Canon of Norwich, 1577-78, and was incorporated at Oxford; he took his B.D. in 1578 and in 1580 was appointed Regius Professor of Divinity at Cambridge, and in the same year was appointed Chancellor of St. Paul's; in 1586-87 he was admitted Master of St. John's College, Cambridge, and took his D.D.; in 1587 he resigned the Chancellorship of St. Paul's, and in 1595 was installed Canon of Canterbury, but died the same year, and was buried in the Chapel of St. John's College. He was one of the authors of the Lambeth Articles, and was considered the champion of the Church of England against Bellarmine. He was the author of many theological works which are enumerated in the Athenæ Cantab. He is frequently mentioned in the Spending Book of Robert Nowel as receiving presents.

William Camden,

Born in 1550; went from St. Paul's School to Magdalen College, Oxford, whence he migrated to Broadgate Hall, and thence to Christ Church; B.A. probably in 1570; Under Master and afterwards Head Master of Westminster School; subsequently became Richmond Herald, and in 1597 Clarencieux King at Arms, Professor of History in Chelsea College, founded by Matthew Suttelive; died in 1623 and was buried in Westminster Abbey. He founded a Professorship of Ancient History in the University of Oxford in 1622, and was the author of numerous antiquarian works, of which the most famous is the Britanniae Descriptio, commonly called Britannia. He also brought out a Greek Grammar for the use of Westminster School.

John Howson,

Born in St. Bride's Parish, London, about 1556; went to Christ Church, Oxford; Vicar of Bampton, Oxon.; Canon of Christ Church; Vice-Chancellor, 1602; was one of the original Fellows of King James I. College at Chelsea, 1610; Bishop of Oxford, 1618; translated to Durham, 1628; died 1631-32, and was buried in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Thomas Langhorne (Lawgherne),¹

Called in the Accounts the Company's Scholar in Oxford; but in the Minutes said to be of Trinity College, Cambridge; elected to an Exhibition, September 26, 1564, which continued till 1568-69. A Thomas Langherne was chosen Fellow of Pembroke Hall, Cambridge, in 1567.

Thomas Cole,

B.A. of Magdalen College, Oxford, but in the Accounts said to be of Cambridge; elected Scholar October 14, 1564, but his Exhibition was withdrawn November 2, 1565, because he had left the realm without the Company's leave; but Dom. Cole had leave from the College to go abroad with Lawrence Tomson, May 6, 1565 (B.M.).

Thomas Knight,

Son of William K. (deceased); Exhibitioner to Cambridge, 1565.

Ralph Warcop (Raffe Warcoppe, Warcope),

Exhibitioner 1566; son and heir of Cuthbert W., mercer, of English, Oxon.; entered at Christ Church, Ox., about 1561; B.A. 1564; he was a Justice of the Peace and M.P. for Oxfordshire in the 43rd year of Elizabeth; he was appointed ambassador to France or Spain by James I., but died in the 60th year of his age in 1605. He was the author of a Translation of Prayers on the Psalms by August Marlorat 1571 (A.O.).

Henry Hickman,

Second son of Anthony H., of Woodford Hall, Essex; Exhibitioner 1570, St. John's Coll. Camb.; D.C.L.

Thomas Byllingford,

Son of Richard B., and a kinsman of Sir Thos. Gresham; elected Company's Scholar at Broadgates Hall, Oxford, April 7, 1570, and continued till 1576-77.

William Sadler,Nycholas Smythe,*William Husnis (Hunnis),*Edward Levison (Levisus),*Jefree Morgane,*Robert Russell,*Anthony Egliefield,

The above appear as "Schollers of Poulls School" who receive gowns from Robert Nowel's estate in the year 1568.

¹ With regard to these early Exhibitioners I cannot assert that they received their education at St. Paul's School. In going through the Accounts I found it stated in two instances at least that the Exhibitioner had been educated at Mercers' Chapel School; two more had been educated at Horsham School, which was also under the government of the Mercers. I was at first inclined to assume that where no school was stated they came from St. Paul's School, but several of them are claimed by Merchant Taylors' School, as will be noticed hereafter (see 1596 and 1597). I have however included here the names of all Exhibitioners except those who are explicitly stated to have been educated elsewhere, inasmuch as whether Paulines or not, they owed part of their advancement at the University to the funds furnished by Colet's liberality.

1573-1581

High Master

WILLIAM MALYM.

Lady Day.

(Malin or Malim) born at Staplehurst, Kent, 1533. Educated at Eton, whence he proceeded to King's College, Cambridge, 1548; Fellow, 1551; B.A. 1552; M.A. 1556; travelled and visited Antioch, Constantinople, Jerusalem, and other Eastern cities, 1561; appointed a Master at Eton, where he remained ten years; Prebendary of Biggleswade, Lincoln, 1569. He received a present from the Court on leaving St. Paul's School, and the implements which he left behind were purchased for the School; he died probably in 1594. Author of A true Report of all the successes of Famagosta, London, 1572; Oratio Latina duci Joanni Casimir, 1578, and various Latin Verses. He also edited the poetical works of Sir Thomas Chaloner, under the immediate care of Cecil, (Lord Burleigh).

the Cathechysmus and Ten Commaundementes in Inglysh."

SCHOLARS.

Thomas Chaloner,

Born 1559; removed from St. Paul's School to Magdalen College, Oxford; took no degree; travelled beyond the seas; Knighted by King Henry IV. of France in 1591; created M.A. at a Royal visit to Oxford, Aug. 30, 1605; Tutor to Prince Henry, son of James I.; died in 1615, aged 51 (?) years. He is said to have written Pastorall Poesie, and a translation of Ovid's Epistle Helen to Paris, but no works are extant.

Martin Reade,

Of Powles Schole, receives money from Robert Nowel's estate on April 8, 1573, and October 5, 1575 (on going to Oxford). "Coll. S. Johis, Bapt. 1572 (?) Martinus Reade, Londinensis, plebeus an. 17" (Matriculations in the University of Oxford).

William Clark or Clerke,

Of Powles School, recommended by Mr. Malynes, receives money on June 3 and February 20 (on going to Cambridge), 1579, from Robert Nowel's estate. Possibly this was William Clerke, Sizar of Trinity College, Cambridge, June, 1575; B.A. 1578-79; soon afterwards elected Fellow; M.A. 1582; reputed author of The Triall of Bastardie, and Polimanteia (A. C.).

"Divers Scholars of Powles Schole" received gratuities, November 10, 1576; and also "certain poor Scholars of Powles" on October 10, 1577.

John Medley,

Son of John M., mercer (deceased); (of Paul's School) Exhibitioner, 1574-78; Trinity College, Cambridge, B.A. 1575-76; M.A. 1579. He is frequently mentioned in the Spending Book of Robert Nowel as receiving Gratuities in the years 1568 (or 1569), 1573, 1575, 1577, and ("against his proceeding Mr. of Arte") 1579. He was Surmaster of St. Paul's School 1578-1580.

Walter Nethercote (Nethercoat),

(of Paul's School); Exhibitioner, 1574-82; Clare Hall, Camb. B.A. 1577; Surmaster of St. Paul's School, 1584-86.

Anthony Hickman,

Fourth son of Anthony H., of Woodford Hall, Essex; Exhibitioner, 1576-84;¹ Peterhouse Cambridge B.A. 1579; M.A. 1583; elected Fellow of Benet, 1583, by mandate from the Queen. The fact of his not taking orders led to considerable disputes in the College, which are described at length in Masters' History of the College. In 1593 he was created LL.D., and in 1596 he was admitted Advocate. He died in 1597, and was buried at St. Benet's, Paul's Wharf, London.

Thomas Mudd,

(Of Powles School), Exhibitioner, 1578-84 (at the suit of Mr. Nowel, Dean of Paul's); Peterhouse Camb. B.A. 1580; he Matriculated Sizar of Caius Coll. June, 1577; Fellow of Pembroke Hall; M.A. 1584. He was living in 1590; see Ath. Cant. ii. 99.

Robert Bartlett,

"Some time a Scholar brought up in the Mercers' Chapelle." Exhibitioner, 1578-84; Trinity College, Cambridge, B.A. 1581.

¹ Cooper (A. C. ii. p. 232), says that he was Pensioner of St. John's, 1575, but the School Accounts say he was of Peterhouse, whence also Masters says that he was elected to Benet.

1581—1596

High Master

JOHN HARRISON.

October 8, 1581.

Born in London 1553, and educated at Eton, whence he became Scholar of King's College, Cambridge, 1570; Fellow 1573-79; B.A. 1574; M.A. 1578. He is mentioned in the Spending Book of Robert Nowel as "our cosyn," receiving gifts on many occasions. In 1585 he was made M.A. of Oxford. He engaged in a controversy with the Mercers' Company on the subject of his salary and other matters which led to his leaving the school (see Fasti, 1595); Cooper (A.C.) states that he died in 1596.

Under Usher 1583 GEORGE SHEPPARDE.
July 3.
Of Christ's College, Cambridge; B.A. 1580; in 1583-84 he received £2 towards his commencing M.A.

Under Usher 1588 WISE (WITHERS).
He died in 1589, and Harrison was his executor (A.).

Under Usher 1590 FRANCIS HERRING (HEARINGE).
Having taken part in the controversy between Harrison and the Company (see Fasti, 1595), he seems to have left the School at the same time as Harrison. He received a grant of £6 13s. 4d. in 1598-99.

SCHOLARS.

Richard Smyth,

Son of William S. Exhibitioner 1582, Magdalen Coll. Oxford. Probably Surmaster of St. Paul's School from 1586-99, when he was pensioned, "being fallen into decay of his eyesight and impotency." He was the Surmaster who took part in "the suit and controversy" between Harrison and the Mercers. There is a R. S. chorister of Magdalen; matriculated 1581 (plebei fil.); aged 15; Clerk at Magdalen 1585-89; B.A. 1584 (B.M.).

Edward Sharpe,

Exhibitioner 1582, Queens' Coll. Camb.; B.A. 1580.

Lionel Holliman (Holyman),

Exhibitioner 1583 or 1584. Trinity Coll. Camb.; matriculated 1582; B.A. 1585; M.A. 1589; Fellow of Corpus Christi; proceeded B.D. and was one of the University Preachers, 1597; vacated his Fellowship about 1598 (A.C.).

Willie Raven,

Edward Lane,

St. John's College, Cambridge; B.A. (probably) 1625; M.A.; Vicar of North Stredbury in Essex, 1630; Vicar of Spersholt. Author of Look unto Jesus, 1663, Mercy Triumphant, 1680.

Charles Diodati (Deodatus),

Son of Theodore D., Doctor of Medicina. Proceeded from St. Paul's School to Trinity College, Oxford, in 1621-22; left College as M.A. 1628; practised physic in Cheshire; died 1638. To him are addressed two of Milton's Latin letters—the first and sixth Elegies and the fourth Sonnet. In the Introduction to the Epitaphium Damonis he is described as "ingenio, doctrina cæterisque clarissimis virtutibus juvenis egregius."

Richard Turk,

Exhibitioner 1622-32, Magdalen College, Oxford; afterwards (1628) of St. Edmund Hall; B.A. 1626.

George Harris,

"A poor scholler in Cambridge, some time of this School, towards his commencement £5," 1627-28 (A). G. H. of Pembroke Hall, Cambridge, takes his B.A. 1627. Probably the G. H. who was Under Usher of St. Paul's School 1641-47. He was dismissed on April 9, 1647, "in regard that he deserted the Schole of his own accord" (M).

¹ See Colet's Statutes (Appendix B.), under the heading "The Children." This is the first record that I have found concerning the Porter or Poor Scholar. The post continued to be held by one of the boys through the century; it was generally held for one year, sometimes longer. He was allowed to employ a deputy for the harder work, after paying whom he kept the rest of the stipend for himself. I am inclined to think that the Poor Scholar acted as librarian, and that this was the origin of the annual grant of £30 to the Captain of the School for acting as librarian, which continued till 1876. (See Note under S. Johnson, Exhibitioner, 1664.)

Charles Gataker (Gatacre),

Son of Thomas G. Entered Sidney-Sussex College, Cambridge (at the age of 16); B.A. 1632; removed to Pembroke College, Oxford; admitted M.A. 1636; said to have been Chaplain to Lucius Cary, Viscount Falkland; Rector of Hoggston, Bucks, 1647, where he died in 1680, aged 67. Author of The Way of Truth and Peace, 1670, The Papists' Bail, 1674, Examination of the Case of the Quakers, 1675, Ichnographia Doctrinae de Justificatione, 1681.

Charles Scarborough,

Exhibitioner 1632-42, Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge ("an ingeniose young student," Aubrey's Letters); B.A. 1636; M.A. 1640; Fellow; incorporated M.D. of Merton College, Oxford, 1646, and began to practise in London; became principal physician to Charles II. in 1669, and was knighted. He continued physician to James II. and William III., dying in 1693, aged 79. He lectured for sixteen years at Surgeon's Hall on the Muscles of the Human Body, and was characterised as "a learned and incomparable Anatomist" (Pepys). He was the author of Syllabus Musculorum, and a Treatise on Trigonometry, and is said to have methodised Lily's Grammar (Fuller's Worthies). He was a benefactor to St. Paul's School Library in 1674 and 1675.

Christopher Milton,

Brother of John M.; born 1615; took the Royalist side, and was fined £200 for serving as Commissioner of Sequestrations for the king; resided in Exeter during the siege, 1646; bencher of the Inner Temple; Serjeant-at-Law, April 21, 1686; Baron of the Exchequer, April 24, 1686; knighted by James II.; Chief Justice of Common Pleas, April 18, 1687; dismissed July 3, 1688. He was suspected of leaning to the Church of Rome. He died at Rushmore, near Ipswich, and was buried in the Church of St. Nicholas, Ipswich, 1692-93, of which town he had been nominated deputy-recorder by Charles II.

Son of John A., Medical Professor of London; born at Ipswich; entered St. John's College, Cambridge, 1634, aged about 16, after five years at St. Paul's School; B.A. 1638.

¹ These appear to have been the first Exhibitioners elected under Lord Campden's bequest. The Company undertook to advance the necessary funds until the money came in from the property bequeathed for the Foundation.

1635—1640

High MasterALEXANDER GILL.November 18, 1635.*

Exhibitioner of St. Paul's School 1612, which see. In 1639 a complaint was made against him for violence and excessive severity towards a boy named Bennett: and he received a warning that he would not be re-elected at the annual re-election of masters in 1640. He seems to have given the Court some trouble, as there is an item of £13 7s. 11d. in the accounts, "charges for displacing Dr. Gill:" and further in the accounts for 1639-40 he is paid only the stipend allowed by the founder, all extra payments and gratuities being stopped. However, on February 22, 1640, he was granted an allowance of £25, annually renewable: and in the course of the year received £50 in full of all demands. He only lived to draw his allowance for a year and a half.

Pauline Exhibitioner, 1639-41, Pembroke Hall, Cambridge.

John Bennett,

"Poor Scholar," 1637-38 (three-quarters of a year), Pauline Exhibitioner, 1639-43, Trinity College, Cambridge. It was for violent treatment of this boy, that Dr. Gill was eventually "displaced." He and his brother were expelled by the High Master but readmitted February 18, 1639.

¹ With regard to these and the succeeding Exhibitioners, it must be remembered that hardly any payments were made between 1643 and 1647. There are a few in 1644 and 1646, but none in 1645. On February 7th, 1643, the Court postponed the question of Exhibitions till "when it shall please God the time be more settled." (M.) See Fasti, under date.

Thomas Smith,

Pauline Exhibitioner, 1639-43, he was restored to his Exhibition, March 23, 1646, and it continued till 1652, Christ's College, Cambridge; B.A. 1643; M.A. 1660; University Librarian, 1659-61. He receives a grant of £6 13s. 4d. in 1646-47, of £5 on February 4, 1652, and again of £5 on October 5, 1653; died September 27, 1661; Author of a translation of Dean Colet's Sermon before Convocation; also of a Life of Dean Colet, translated from Erasmus' account of him; he also translated Dalleus de usu Patrum.

Thomas Arris,

Son of Edward A., surgeon, born in Smithfield; entered St. John's College, Cambridge, June 29, 1639 (aged 17); B.A. 1642.

John Hurt,

Son of W. Hurte (sic), merchant, born in London; entered St. John's College, Cambridge, July 4, 1640 (aged 18), after seven years at St. Paul's School. He petitioned for an Exhibition February 4, 1639, but was refused.

Alexander Smith,

Pauline Exhibitioner, 1639-47, Balliol College, Oxford. He receives a gratuity (£6 13s. 4d.) in 1646, and again (£5) in 1648.

Alexander Kersley,

Pauline Exhibitioner, 1639-47, Balliol College, Oxford. He receives a gratuity (£6 13s. 4d.) in 1646.

Humfry Drake,

Pauline Exhibitioner, 1640-49, Wadham College, Oxford. He receives a gratuity (£6 13s. 4d.) in 1646, and again (£4) in 1647-48.

1640—1657

High Master

JOHN LANGLEY.

January 7.

Born near Banbury. Magdalen Hall, Oxford, B.A. 1616; M.A. 1619; became Master of the College School at Gloucester, and Prebendary of the Cathedral, where he remained twenty years; when he was elected High Master Mr. Lloyd and Mr. Minors were disappointed suitors and received a present of £4. Dr. Gill, the displaced High Master, also received a few votes. He was one of the witnesses against Archbishop Laud at his trial. He was appointed one of the censors of the Press under the Act of 1643. He died September 13, 1657, and was buried in Mercers' Chapel. His funeral sermon was preached by Dr. Edward Reynolds (afterwards Bishop of Norwich) who says that he was "a great Antiquary," "a most judicious Divine," "Pausanias was not more learned in the description of Greece than he of England," "it might be said of him 'doctum in hoc uno crederes quodcumque diceret.'" He recommended his successor (Mr. Crumlum) on his death-bed. Author of Totius Rhetoricæ adumbratio in usum Schol. Paul. 1644; Introduction of Grammar; and a translation of Polidore Vergil de rerum inventoribus, 1663 (but this latter is attributed also to Thomas Langley).

Midsummer.

He continued Under Usher till 1675, when he retired on a pension of £20 a year.

He appears to have been in continual distress for money, frequently receiving extra grants "for his great charge": in 1654, for the sickness of his wife; for himself and his wife much afflicted with sickness (1656 and 1657); for the loss sustained by him by thieves (1657); but he appears to have given great satisfaction, frequently receiving rewards for his great pains, especially in 1657, during the vacancy of the High Mastership, and in 1672, during the long illness of Mr. Bull, and at Mr. Crumlum's death.

SCHOLARS.

He served under Turenne against the United Provinces in 1672; in 1673 he became Lieut-Colonel of Littleton's regiment and Gentleman of the Bed-chamber to the Duke of York, and in 1680 married the celebrated Sarah Jennings. In 1682 he was created a Scotch Peer by the title of Lord Churchill of Eymouth, and in 1683 became Colonel of the First or Royal Regiment of Dragoons. In 1685 he received the Colonelcy of the Third Troop of Life Guards, and was second in command as Brigadier-General at Sedgemoor, 1685; in the same year he was created Baron Churchill, of Sandridge, Herts. After the Revolution he became Earl of Marlborough, 1689, and commanded successfully at Cork and Kinsale. In 1698 he became a Privy Councillor and Preceptor to the Duke of Gloucester. In 1702, on the accession of Queen Anne, he became Captain-General and Master-General of Ordnance, Ambassador Extraordinary at the Hague, and Commander-in-Chief of the allied forces in Flanders. He was also made Knight of the Garter, Marquis of Blandford, and DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH. He won the successive victories of Blenheim, 1704, Ramillies, 1706, Oudenarde, 1708, and Malplaquet (or Blaregnies) 1709; and in 1705 was created a Prince of the Holy Roman Empire; but in 1712 he was removed from all his posts. On the accession of George I. 1714, he became again Captain-General and Master-General of Ordnance; died in 1722.

 Rector of Mountnessing, Essex, 1765; became chaplain to a regiment, and married a sister of Mrs. Grosvenor. In 1770 he answered Dr.
 Johnson's pamphlet called The False Alarm. He is said to have endeavoured to persuade Lord North that he was Junius, hoping to get a pension by undertaking to write no more; but it is certain from Francis' letters that he was abroad during a great part of the Junius period; in 1772 he was living a dissolute life in Paris. He is said to have refused to marry the Prince of Wales to Mrs. Fitzherbert. About 1797 he was sent out as Archdeacon of Colombo to Ceylon, where he died in September, 1798.

Thomas Troubridge, aged 10, son of Richard T., at Mr. Church's, Temple Barr.

Sir Thomas Troubridge entered the Navy about 1773, on board the Seahorse, Captain Farmer, and distinguished himself shortly afterwards by his gallantry at the capture of the Tartine French frigate of superior force. Attained Post-rank, January 1, 1783. On his passage in May 1794, to Newfoundland in command of the Castor, 32, he was captured off Cape Clear by part of the French fleet, and he chanced in consequence to be on board the Sanspareil, 80, flag-ship of Rear-Admiral Nielly on the famous First of June. While in command afterwards of the Culloden, 74, his reputation reached the highest pitch of fame. He was afterwards engaged in a variety of important engagements off the coast of Italy, where, previously to obtaining possession of the Roman territory he commanded a detachment of seamen and marines at the investment of the Castle of St. Elmo which capitulated after a siege of nine days. As a reward for the great importance of his services he was presented with the Sicilian order of St. Ferdinand and of Merit, and was raised, November 30, 1799, to the dignity of a Baronet of Great Britain. After officiating as Captain of the Channel Fleet, under Earl St. Vincent, he took a seat at the Board of Admiralty, and in April, 1805, having attained the rank of Rear-Admiral, hoisted his flag on board the Blenheim, 74, and sailed for India as Commander-in-Chief in the seas to the eastward of Point de Galle, in the island of Ceylon. On January 12, 1807, he left Madras in the Blenheim, accompanied by the Java frigate and Harrier brig, for the purpose of assuming the chief command of the Cape of Good Hope. The Blenheim and Java parted from the Harrier on the night of February 1, during a tremendous gale, and were not afterwards heard of.

- John Paterson, admitted on to the Foundation, May 12, 1769.

The following must be included among THICKNESSE's pupils, though his name is not found in the Registers :—

John André,

Major in the British Army ; acting as Adjutant-General under Sir Henry Clinton, he was taken prisoner within the American lines during the intrigues connected with the treachery of Arnold, and was tried as a spy and executed, October 2, 1780, at the age of 29. A monument was erected to his memory in Westminster Abbey by King George III., and on November 28, 1821, his bones, which had been removed from the scene of his death, were deposited in a vault near his monument.

WILL OF DEAN COLET.¹

In the name of God, Amen.—On the 10th day of the month of June, A.D. one thousand five hundred and fourteen, and in the 6th year of the reign of King Henry the VIII., after the Conquest, I, John Colet, Doctor of Holy Theology, Dean of the Cathedral Church of Saint Paul's, London, Citizen and Mercer of London, and Freeman of the same city, son and heir of Sir Henry Colet, Knight, Citizen whilst he lived, and Alderman of London, do compose, make, and ordain this my present testament as to the disposition of all and singular messuages, lands, and tenements, and other my hereditaments under written, with their appurtenances, within the city of London, after the manner which follows. Imprimis, I bequeath and recommend my soul to God Omnipotent, my Creator and Saviour, and to the Blessed Mary, His Mother. Item, I the aforesaid John Colet, give and bequeath to the wardens and commonalty of the Mystery of the Mercery of the city of London, all my messuages, lands, tenements, and other hereditaments under written, viz. one messuage with shop, cellars, solars, and all other the appurtenances, situate, lying, and being in Soper Lane, in the parishes of Saint Anthony and Saint Pancras, in the ward of Cordwainer Street, London, between the lane called Soper's Lane on the east part, and the tenement of the prior and convent of the hospital of the Blessed Mary, of Elsyng, London, and the tenement appertaining to the parish church of St. Mary of Colechurch on the west part, and the tenement appertaining to the church of the Blessed Mary at London on the south part, and the hall or entry there leading from Soper Lane aforesaid unto the hinder gate of the messuage of the said prior and convent on the north part, and my said messuage contains in land lengthwise in the east part thereof, near Soper's Lane aforesaid, between the north and south, one hundred and seventeen feet and one inch, and in breadth in the north part near the said hall or entry, between the east and west, eighty-six feet and five inches of assize, and it contains in length, in the south part thereof, by three several frontispieces or three several corners ninety-three feet and four inches of assize within, without the back, which back of the said three fronts contains in length, by the south, twenty-nine and a half feet three inches of assize, and the middle frontispiece or corner thereof contains, in the south, twenty-five feet of assize, and the anterior frontispiece or corner thereof contains in length, by the south, thirty-nine and a half feet of assize, which make the said length of ninety-four feet three inches, and the interior or back of the frontispieces contains in breadth, at the west end thereof, forty-four feet three inches of assize, and the middle frontispiece thereof contains, in breadth, at the west end, towards the south, more than the said interior frontispiece by twenty-six feet seven and a half inches of assize, and the anterior frontispiece thereof contains, in breadth, at the west end thereof, towards the south, more than the middle frontispiece by fourteen feet and two inches of assize. And also all those my two messuages, with their appurtenances, situate and lying in the parish of Saint Magnus the Martyr, in the ward of Bridge, London, whereof one messuage thereof is situate and lies between the high street there, called Bridge Street, on the east part, and the tenement appertaining to the parish church of Saint Magnus aforesaid on the west and south parts, and the high street there, called Thames Street, on the north part, and contains in length, in the east part thereof near the said street called Bridge Street, between the south and north, ten feet and five inches of assize, and in length in the west part thereof, between the south and north, ten feet three inches and a half of assize, and in breadth, at the north end near Thames Street aforesaid, nine feet and eight inches of assize, and in breadth, at the south end thereof, between the east and west, nine feet seven inches and a half of assize; and the other messuage thereof is situated and lies in Bridge Street aforesaid, between the street of Bridge Street on the east part, and the tenement late of John Brunsop, and Agnes his wife, and the tenement late of Dame Tailliard on the west and south parts, and the tenement late of Richard Cokks, and Lettice his wife, on the north part, and it contains in length, in the north part thereof, between the east and west, sixteen feet and seven inches of assize, and in breadth, in the south part thereof, between the east and west, fifteen feet and eight inches of assize, and in breadth, at the east end thereof, near Bridge Street aforesaid, ten feet six inches and a half of assize, and in length, at the west end thereof, between the north and south, nine feet and six inches of assize, which messuages, lands, and tenements, and other the premises, with their appurtenances, were lately in the aforesaid Henry Colet's, my father, and which by and after the death of the same Henry Colet to me the aforesaid John Colet in hereditary right did lately descend, and into all and singular which messuages, lands, and tenements I, the aforesaid John Colet, by hereditary right, did lately enter, and took thereof full and peaceable possession and seizen, and in my like possession they have hitherto continued, and of the same messuages, lands, and tenements, and other the premises, with their appurtenances, at present I am solely seized in my demesne as of fee. I also, the aforesaid John, do give and bequeath to the aforesaid wardens and commonalty of the Mystery aforesaid all that my grammar school and the chapel founded in the same, together with the house for the master and the other offices of the same school by me lately built and constructed upon my land lying near the wall of the churchyard of Saint Paul's, London, at the east part thereof, to wit, between the tenement of Alice Cruce, widow, on the south part, and the tenement late in the tenure of Andrew Renne on the north part, containing in length, from south to north, one hundred and twenty-two feet of assize, and in breadth, from east to west, thirty and three feet of assize; and moreover all that my grammar house, a messuage lately called Paul's Scole, and four shops under the same house or messuage constructed, now in the tenure of William Berell, citizen and grocer of London, and Joan his wife, for a term of years, situate near Saint Austin's Gate, to wit, between the tenement appertaining to the masters or wardens of the Bridge, London, in which John Hychcock, citizen and merchant tailor of London, now dwells, on the east part, and a certain great gate whose entry leads from the highway there to the churchyard of the Cathedral Church aforesaid on the west part, containing in length, from the aforesaid tenement unto the great gate aforesaid, fifty-five feet of assize, and in breadth twenty feet of assize, which I lately had by gift, grant, and confirmation of John Osyer, Benjamin Digby, and Simon Rice, citizens and mercers of the aforesaid city, and in which at present I am solely seized in my demesne as of fee. And also I give those my two tenements or messuages newly built, with the appurtenances, now in the tenure of John Evers, citizen and haberdasher of London, situate in the Old Change, London, between the tenement now in the tenure of Reginald Jewe, citizen and haberdasher of London, on the south part, and the tenement now in the tenure of the said John Evers on the north part, and they contain in length, from south to north, twenty-eight feet and four inches of assize, and in breadth from east to west, eleven feet of assize, which I lately purchased of the mayor and commonalty of the city of London, and in which at present I am solely seized in like manner in my demesne as of fee; and moreover, all those my six tenements, with their appurtenances, newly built, situate together in the parish of Saint George in Pudding Lane, near East Cheap, in the ward of Billingsgate, London, between the tenement of the said dean and chapter on the east part, and the lane called Pudding Lane on the west part, and the lane called Saint George's Lane on the south part, and the tenement of the Mystery of Salters, London, called the Scalding House, of old time called Tanners' Hall, on the north part; and the said six tenements contain by land in length, in the south part thereof, near the said lane called Saint George's Lane, between the east and west, fifty-eight feet and six inches of assize, and in length, in the north part thereof, near the said tenement called the Scalding House, between the east and west, seventy feet of assize, and in breadth, at the west end thereof, near Pudding Lane aforesaid, thirty-six feet and three inches of assize, and in breadth, at the east end thereof, between the north and south, twenty-six feet and eight inches, which six tenements, with their appurtenances, were late the aforesaid Henry Colet's, my father, and which by and after the death of him, Henry

¹ [For this transcript of the Statutes, and the notes appended to it, I am indebted to my colleague, the Rev. J. H. Lupton, Sur-
master of St. Paul's School.—R.B.G.]

² The Statutes of St. Paul's School which follow are copied from the original document, bearing the founder's autograph, preserved at Mercers' Hall, and which I was allowed to transcribe through the kindness of John Watney, Esq., Clerk of the Mercers' Company. They fill twenty-two pages of a paper-book, the size of the page being 10½ inches by 8, and are followed by the Amending Ordinances, made June 24th, 1602 (Appendix B. II.), and by some still more recent ones. The book is bound in vellum, having a miniature portrait of Dean Colet painted outside the first cover, and has been most carefully preserved.

In the British Museum there is another original copy, marked "Additional and Egerton, 6274." A description of it was given in the edition of Colet's De Sacra-

CAPITULUM PRIMUM DE MAGISTRO PRIMARIO.

In the Gramer scole founded in the church yarde of paulis at the Estende in the yere of our lorde 1512 by John Colett Deane of the same church in the honor of Christ Jesu in puericia and of his blessyd Mother Mary² Jn that scole shalbe ffirst an high Maister. This high maister in doctrine lernyng and techyng shall direct all the scole. This Maister shalbe chosen by the wardens and assistance of the Mercery A man hoole in body honeste and vertuose and lernyd in good and clene laten litterature and also in greke yf suyche may be gotten³ a weddid man a single manne or a preste that hath noo benefice with cure nor seruice that may lett his due besynes in the scole.

✠ The Mercers shall assemble to gither in the Scole housse with suyche aduyse and counsell of wele litteratur and lernyd menne as they can get, they shal chose this maister and geve vnto hym his charge sayng vnto hym on this avyse

✠ Sir we haue chosyn you to be Maister and techer⁴ of this scole to teche the Children of the same not allonly good litterature but also good Maners certifying you that this is no Rome of continuaunce and perpetuite but vpon your deuty in the scole, And euery yere at Candelmasse whenne the Mercers be assembled in the Scole housse ye shall submit you to our Examinacion and founde doying your dutye according ye shalle continue, mentis Ecclesie (1867), p. 3. The Statutes are there written on twelve leaves of paper, measuring 8½ inches by 6. The handwriting of the two is not the same; and from the fact of some interlineations in the Museum copy being duly inserted in the text of that at Mercers' Hall, I should infer that the former was an earlier draft, corrected by Colet himself. Both are subscribed by the founder, manu propria, and both have marginal notes in his own hand. As each is described as "delivered into the hands of William Lily, June 18th, 1518, to be kept in the School," it is probable, unless we suppose duplicate copies to have been so delivered, that the one first made was retained by the Dean himself. This smaller and earlier one—the one now in the Museum—I shall denote by the letter M, for the purpose of noticing a few various readings. From it is taken the title "Statuta Paulinæ Scholæ," which is not found in the Mercers' Hall copy; and it also contains on the reverse of the first leaf, the following curious memorandum, in Colet's own hand: "Of halidayes and halfe halydayes all noubred togyder in whiche ys no teachinge ther be yn the hole yere vii^{xx} and xiiij." Seven score and thirteen, it will be observed, make 153; a number on which more will be said presently.

¹ appere—M. The form in the text is no doubt a mere slip in writing; but I have preserved the spelling throughout unchanged, only expanding the contractions. The marginal marks of ✠ have also been retained, being made, apparently, by Colet himself.

² The situation of the School in St. Paul's Churchyard has caused this, its proper name, to be forgotten.

⁴ The words "and techer" omitted in M.

Also yf eny controuersy and stryff shalbe betwixt you and Surmaister or the Chapleyn of the scole ye shall stande at the direccion of the surveyors beyng for that yere

And yf the chosyn Maister will promyse this thenne admitt him and name hym to it and stall him in his sete in the scole and shew hym his lodging, that is to sey all the sellers by neth¹ and the hall the kychyn and buttery and over that the hoole story and Chaumbers and in the house rooff the little midd chaumber and the galary in the soughside, As touching all the story of chaumbers next vnderneath the galaris he shall nothyng meddell with all and they shall geve hym the Implementis of his house by Indenture.²

All these louginggis he shall haue fre with oute eny payment and in this lodging he shall dwell and kepe hushold to his power.

Hys wagis shalbe a merke a weke³ and a levery gowne of iiij nobles delyueryd in cloth.

His absence shalbe but onys in the yere and not aboue xxx⁴ dayes whiche he shall take coniunctim or diuisim.

Yf the Maister be syk of sekenes incurable⁴ or fall in to suche age that he may not conveniently teche, and hathe benne a man that long and laudably hath taught in the scole Thanne let a nother be chosyn And by the discrete charite of the mercery lett ther be assignede to the olde maister a resonable levyng of x^l. or other Wyse as it shall seme convenient so that the olde maister after his longe labor in noo wyse be left destitute.

Yf the Maister be syk of sekenesse curable yett neuerthelesse I will he shall haue his wagis and in suych sekenes yff he may not teche let hym rewarde the vnder maister for his more labour sum what accordyng.

Yff the vnder Maister be in litterature and in honest lyff accordyng thanne the highe maisters Rome vacant let hym be chosyn before a nother.

The hye maister shall haue The Tenement in Stebenhith⁵ nowe in the handis of Cristofer middelton to resorte vnto which Tenement the Mercers shall maynten and repayre.

¹ i.e. beneath. The accommodation afforded by the High Master's house in 1522 is thus stated in a list of the lodgings available for the reception of the retinue of Charles V., made when he was about to visit the City in that year: "Pawles Church Yard. Maister Lylly, scole maister; j hall, iiij chambres, iiij fetherbeddes, j kechin, and other necessaries."—See the Rutland Papers (Camden Society), p. 87.

² Along with the original copy of the Statutes before described, there is preserved at Mercers' Hall, in the same case, a transcript of them in an old hand, the parchment cover of which is a portion of such an indenture as is here referred to. The fixtures, &c., of the High Master's house are minutely detailed, and the incoming tenant, Richard Mulcaster (appointed in 1596) agrees to give up possession when required.

³ A mark (13s. 4d.) a week would be £34 13s. 4d. a year. The gown of four nobles (6s. 8d.) would come to £1 6s. 8d. additional; making in all £36 a year. Taking the penny then as equivalent to the shilling now, this would represent £432 of our money. But many other considerations would have to come in before such a comparison could be fairly made.

Yf eny Controuersi be betwixt you and the hye maister ye shall stande at oure direction in every thyng.

Yf he will promyse this, Thenne let the mercers aproue the Eleccion of the Surmaister and assigne hym his lodging in the olde chaunge³

His wagis⁴ shalbe vij^s. viij^d. a weke and a lyvery gowne of iiij nobles delyuered in cloth he shall goo to comyns with the hye maister yf he may conveniently

He shalbe absent in all the yere not aboue xxx^d dayes and yet thanne for cause resonably and with licence had of the high maister and also of the surveyours.

In sekenesse curable as axis⁵ or such other sekenesse for a tyme he shalbe tolleratid and haue his full wagis.

Yf after his Cumyng he shall seke in to sekenesse incurable as lepry or and lands, as let to Cristofer Middleton for 20s. a year. It was not the "Great Place," also named in the same list, a mansion adjoining Stepney Church, but a smaller house in the neighbourhood, on the east side of White Horse Street, Stepney. A view of it is given in the Gentleman's Magazine for September, 1818. Sir Henry Colet had lived in the "Great Place"; but after his death his widow, the Dame Christian Colet, removed to the smaller mansion, the one here assigned as a country residence for the High Masters of St. Paul's.—See Morley's Life of Henry Cornelius Agrippa (1856), i. p. 233.

² The limit of absence, both for the High Master and Surmaster, was 30 days in the year,—exclusive, of course, of "holidays" (Sundays and Saints' Days) and "remedies," or occasional play-days. Both masters were not to be absent together, that the work of the School might not be interrupted. In the Statutes of Sevenoaks (1574), which expressly direct that "the said School be ordered as the School of Saint Paul's in London," it is specified that the masters be not absent both at once. At Manchester (1524) twenty days was the limit.

³ The street still called Old Change, running along the back of the School. In the first School-building no separate house was provided for the Surmaster, but, as afterwards stated, he "went to commons" with the High Master.

Lett the hie Maister se the scole be kept clene by the pore chylde⁴ and be swept euery saterdaye and also the ledys, and fro tyme to tyme to call vpon the mercers for necessary reparacions.

THE CHAPELYN

There shalbe also in the Scole a preist that dayly as he can be disposid shall sing masse in the chapell of the Scole⁵ and pray for the Children to prosper in good lyff and in goode litterature to the honour of god and oure lorde Crist Jesu. At his masse whenne the bell in the scole shall Settes shall with lyft vpp handis pray in the tyme of sacryng. After the sacring whenne the bell knyllith ageyn, they shall sitt downe ageyn to theyr lernyng.

This preist sum good honest and vertuose manne shalbe chosyn fro tyme to tyme by the wardens and assistance of the Mercery he shall also lerne or yf he be lerned helpe to teche in the scole yf it shall seme conuenient to the hie Maister or ellis not.

¹ The iron chest or coffer mentioned later on, in which the surplus of the School funds was to be kept.

² The visitations of the sweating-sickness at this period made it necessary to provide for such a contingency. See the chronological list at the end of Hecker's Epidemics of the Middle Ages.

³ "Executorship or protectorship"—M. By combining the two readings we may conclude that the offices meant were those of executors under wills, and proctors, or procurators. Why the latter should be explained by Carlisle (Endowed Grammar Schools, ii. p. 74) as "privileged beggars, especially for Hospitals," I cannot say, unless he was thinking of the old procuratores monasterii. The amount of testamentary and other causes brought before the ecclesiastical courts at this time was enormous. In Chaucer's Frere's Tale, the old widow, when threatened with a citation to the archdeacon's court, replies :—

"May I not axe a libel, sire sompnour,
 And answer there by my procuratour?"

The abbey of St. Alban's alone, to take a single instance, had a jurisdiction which gave employment to a separate court, "attended by an adequate number of resident Proctors."—See Hale's Precedents and Pleadings (1847), Introduction, p. xxxi.

⁴ Such a provision is found in the statutes of many schools. Thus at Newport in Shropshire (1656), the bell was to be rung daily "by some poor scholar," who was to have 20s. a year for his task, and the seats and desks swept and dusted by one or two other boys, who were to receive the same sum.

⁵ This was at the south end of the building, near St. Austin's gate.

⁶ i.e. the elevation of the Host.

He shall haue no benifice with cure nor seruice nor no other office nor occupacion but attend allonly vpon the scole he shall teche the children the cathechyzon¹ and Instruction of the artycles of the faith, and the x commaundements in English.

His Wagis shalbe viij^l. by the yere and lyvery gowne of xxvj^s. viij^d. delyuered in cloth.

His chaumber and loging shalbe in the newe howsse in the olde chayn² or in the maistres loging as shalbe thought best.

He shall not haue his Rome by wrytyng or seale but at libertie acordyng to his deseruyng, His absence may be onys in the yere yf it be nede as it shall seme best to the Surveyours of the scole for that yere, and thanne with licence askyd and obteyned of the saide surveyours.

In sekenesse he shalbe nothing abridged of his wages But lett it be sene that he be holle in body whenne he is chosen.

Yff he ffall to vnthriftynesse and mysbehauour, after lefull warnyng lett hym be repellid and a nother chosyn within viij dayes, or assone after as can be.³

THE CHILDREN.

There shalbe taught in the scole children of all nacions and countres indifferently to the Nounber of a cliii accordyng to the nounber of the Setys in the scole.⁴

¹ This was the Catechism, or elements of religious instruction, prefixed by Colet to his Accidence, and forming a kind of vestibule or entrance to the Grammar, as the preparatory School of Catechumens formed a kind of porch, or proscholium, to his Grammar-School proper. Hence the inscription over the entrance was: "Hoc vestibulo catechizantur pueri in fide moribusque Christianis, neque non primis grammaticis rudimentis instituantur, priusquam ad proximam huius scholae classem admittantur."—Stow's Survey, by Strype, i. p. 163.

² So in M, but Old Change is plainly meant. After "thought best," in the next line is added in M "free with out any paymente."

⁴ It is natural to suppose that this number was chosen with reference to that of the Miraculous Draught of Fishes recorded by St. John (xxi. 11). But it should be remembered that this is after all but matter of conjecture. No reason is given by the Founder himself, though the contrary is sometimes rather rashly asserted,—as by a writer in Notes and Queries (second series, x. p. 254). In a note to his manuscript Statutes already quoted (p. 376) he does indeed mention "seven score and thirteen" (153), but only as being the total number of holidays in the year. Erasmus, writing to Justus Jonas in 1520, describes the foundation of the School, and mentions the fact of the number of scholars being fixed—ad certum numerum—but suggests no reason for the limit. Some Latin verses by Lily are preserved, in which he thanks a friend for a present of fish; but nothing of the kind is alluded to in them, though the occasion might have seemed a tempting one. George Lily, a son of the first High Master, and Polydore Vergil, have both left contemporary accounts of the foundation, but without any notice of the number of boys. The same remark applies to the chronicler Grafton. Stow, writing in 1598, mentions the number of 153, but is silent as to any supposed reason for it. In fact, the first writer who connects it with St. John xxi. 11, is Fuller, whose faculty for tracing such allusions is familiar to all.

² These hours were left unaltered by the Ordinances of 1602; only the masters were more strictly required to observe them, as well as the boys. At some schools, such as Kirkly Stephen (1566) and Skipton (1548), the hours were from six to six, in the summer half-year, with two hours' interval between eleven and one.

³ Two Latin prayers were written by Colet himself for use in his School. Neither of these is included in the present collection, though some of Erasmus's are happily still retained. A selection of these is read daily by the Captain of the School, at the beginning and end of morning and afternoon attendance. Such a Tabula or "table" as that referred to in the text is still suspended in the school-room at Winchester.

⁴ Many conjectures, some rather far-fetched, have been founded on this direction. The better light and greater cleanliness of wax seem the most simple and natural reasons for preferring it. Thus in the ordinances made in 1608 for Guildford School, every scholar was to pay 4d. at Michaelmas, "wherewith shall be bought clean waxen candles to keep light in the school during Winter."—Carlisle's Endowed Grammar Schools, ii. p. 567. The use of candles at St. Paul's was not superseded by gas till 1854.

⁵ The name of "forenoon drinking" is still common in Yorkshire for refreshment taken about eleven o'clock.

⁸ As the "holidays" were, properly speaking, the holy days in the calendar, the name of "remedy" was given to any other day, or part of a day, allowed for relaxation. Thursday afternoon was the most usual time (see Fasti, 1573). Thus at Newport in Shropshire (1656), it was provided that "each Thursday in the worth preserving. A copy, perhaps unique, of the exceedingly rare English translation of Erasmus's Concio, entitled A Sermon of the chylde Jesus made by the most famous clerke Doctour Erasmus of Rotterdam To be pronounced and preached of a chylde vnto chylidren, printed by R. Redman, is in the possession of G. W. Napier, Esq., of Merchistoun, Alderley Edge, Cheshire.

¹ The Boy-Bishop, or Episcopus Puororum, was chosen by the choristers of a cathedral on St. Nicholas' Day (December 6th) and held office till Innocents' Day (December 28th). An account of the custom will be found in Gregorie's Episcopus Puororum in die Innocentium, 1649. By the Statutes of Henry VI. such a Boy-Bishop was to be chosen every St. Nicholas' Day at Eton College; and "this abuse," says H. C. Maxwell Lyte, "was tolerated even by the enlightened Dean Colet, who ordered the boys at St. Paul's to hear a child-bishop preach a sermon on Childermas Day."—History of Eton College, 1875, p. 157. As Erasmus wrote a Concio de Puero Jesu, to be delivered on such an occasion, it is probable that both he and Colet discerned something in the custom

² Such a procession of the "chelderne of Powlles scole" to St. Peter's, Cornhill, is mentioned in the Grey Friar's Chronicle (printed in Monumenta Franciscana, vol. ii.), under the year 1546. Similar ones in 1555 are mentioned in Machyn's Diary, pp. 87 and 92, in which "all the men-chylderyn of the hospetall, and after the chylderne of sant Antonys, and then all the chyltheryn of Powlles and all ther masters and husschers," and others, went from St. Paul's to "Leydynhall," and other places, and then back to the Cathedral.

¹ homines, a slip of the pen for hominis. The Christiani Hominis Institutum was a metrical paraphrase by Erasmus of the "Catechyzon," or religious rudiments prefixed by Colet to his Accidence. It was published, along with Catonis Disticha, and other short pieces, in 1513. For its influence on the Reformation see Churton's Life of Nowell (1809), p. 153.

² For remarks on some of these authors see the Introduction to Colet's Lectures on I. Corinthians, p. liii.—The Eclogues of Baptista Mantuanus (Spagnuoli), the "good old Mantuan" of Love's Labour's Lost (iv. 2), are prescribed as a text-book in the statutes of several schools. The author, a Carmelite friar, died in 1516.

³ In this play on the words, Colet was probably thinking of the derivation of "literature," found in Calepinus, the great authority in his day: littera quasi litura. The vehement language in which the debased Latin of the time is here condemned, is illustrated by a remark of

Erasmus, in his account of Colet in the Letter to Jonas: "Impatiens erat omnium sordium, adeo ut nec sermonem ferret solemum ac barbarie spurcum." No better example could be found of the "barbary and corruption" so strongly denounced, than what Sir Thomas More has related of the two epitaphs written by him for Henry Abingdon, organist and succentor of Wells Cathedral. The first which he composed, in classical Latin, did not suit the taste of Abingdon's representatives; and in place of such lines as

"Unus erat, nuper mira qui voce sonaret, Organa qui scite tangeret, unus erat,"

he had to write:

"Millibus in mille cantor fuit optimus ille;
Præter et hæc ista, fuit optimus orgaquenista."

See Mori Opera (1563), p. 229.

² Extended by the Ordinances of 1602 to such an amount as the Master, Wardens, and Assistants should think fit, "so as the same be expended in frugal manner without excess."

³ The Master of the Company, sometimes called the Prime Warden.

⁴ i.e. enter on the minutes.

⁵ By the Amending Ordinances of 1602 this short term was extended to 21 years, and by later Ordinances of February 6th, 1841, to the period of 80 years.

⁶ That is, the Cofer, or iron chest, mentioned a little after.

⁷ It is just possible that "extemyd" ("put aside" as a balance) may be the word here; but it looks most like "extemyd," which I suppose is for "esteemed," i.e. "computed," as extimo is found for existimo.

⁸ By the Amending Ordinances this surplus was directed to be employed in exhibitions to poor scholars, or to be lent out upon loan.

² The wisdom and liberality of mind shown by the Founder in this section will be remarked, no less than the solemnity of his language. It was in virtue of the authority thus given that the Amending Ordinances of 1602 were framed. To the more recent and far more sweeping changes made by a higher power, or to the "faithful dealing" of the Mercers' Company, most fully admitted even by those chiefly instrumental in those changes, it would be out of place here to do more than allude.

³ This building, which I presume to have been the old Cathedral School, then for some reason disused, is more fully described in Colet's Will, dated June 10th, 1514, as "all that my grammar house a messuage lately called Paul's Scole, and four shops under the same house or messuage constructed, now in the tenure of William Berell, citizen and grocer of London, and Joan his wife, for a term of years, situate near St. Austin's gate." Also after cause shewed yf he contynue so absent tyl the weke of admyssyon in the nexte quarter, and than ye shewe not the contynuaunce

¹ In this case the correction is rightly made, and the total of £80 5s. is the only one given in M. The item of 20s. 8d. for "The Maister and Wardens" requires to be altered to 21s. 8d. (being a noble, and three sums of 5s. each). In the printed copy of the Statutes given in the Report of Lord Clarendon's Commission, these accounts are balanced, and shown to be correct. The obolus is there represented by $\frac{1}{4}$ d., instead of, what I presume it should be, $\frac{1}{2}$ d.

² The form Colett, with a twirl after the last letter, is probably an abbreviation for Colettus. In M the same subscription is repeated on the reverse of the last leaf, and there the name is written Joannes Colet. In the Admission Book of Doctors' Commons, preserved in the Library of Lambeth Palace, is an entry in Dean Colet's own hand (leaf 8), and there his name appears as Jo. Colet. The same interesting volume contains also the name of "Cristoferus Mydyltonus procurator" (leaf 6), probably the one mentioned above as being a tenant of Colet's.

³ These "articles," or terms of admission, to be agreed to by parents who desired their children to enter St. Paul's School, are found in early editions of Colet's Accidence, usually printed on the reverse of the title-page. In the form here given, they are taken from a copy of the edition of 1527, the earliest known to be extant, now in the Cathedral Library of Peterborough. The book formerly belonged to Dr. White Kennett, Bishop of Peterborough, and the opportunity of transcribing part of it was afforded me through the kindness of the Rev. W. D. Sweeting, (O.P.), Master of the Cathedral School. Its exact title is:—Joannis Coleti, theologi, olim decani divi Pauli, editio, una cum quibusdam G. Lili Grammatices Rudimentis. An edition of 1534 and one of 1539 are preserved in the Pepysian Library at Cambridge, bound together in one volume. The latter was printed by Henry Pepwel in St. Paul's Churchyard, and professed to be "ad uerum Paulinæ Scholæ exemplar." The two corrections given below are taken from it.

Wee doe ordeyne and declare that the said ordinance shall from hensfourth be expounded and understood that the Mercers (that is to say) the maister, wardeins, and assistents of the Mistere of Mercers in London, or the more parte of them then assembled in the schole howse, shall then and there yeerelie have full power to examyne the highe maister towching the proffitinge of the schollers in litterature and good manners, his demeanor and conversation and the due observation of the founder's ordinances. And that the high maister shall not only submit himself to such examynation, but also yeerely at the same tyme yeild and resigne up his place into theire handes as was used in the lifytyme of the foundor to their predecessors. And if the maister shall then by the approbation of the said maister, wardeins, and assistents of the said Mistere of Mercers or the moste parte of them be founde to have done his dutie he shall contynue, otherwise in case he shall then by their judgments be founde defective within sixe monethes next after warninge to him given by the said maister, wardeins, and assistents or the moste parte of them, he shall quietlie departe.

Item.—Wee doe ordeyne that the surmaister and usher yerely about Candlemas, when the said maister, wardeins, and assistents of the Mercers or the moste parte of them be assembled in the schole as aforesaid, shall resigne their places into the hands of the said maister, wardeins, and assistents of the Mercerie there assembled and being then founde to haue don their duties they shall contynue, otherwise within sixe monethes after warninge given, they shall quietlie departe.

Further, whereas there are other statutes under these titles, viz., "Capitulum primum de magistro primario," the surmaister and the chapleyn, that they shall have yeerly livery gownes of fowre nobles delivered unto them in cloth. Wee doe ordeyne that the said maister, surmaister, and usher (instead of the chapleyn) shall haue the said liveries in cloth, or fowre nobles a peece yerely in monnie, in leiwe of the said cloth, or such further allowance in monnie as the maister, wardeins, and assistents of the Mercers for the tyme beinge, or the moste parte of them, shall think fitt.

Further, whereas there are other statutes under these titles, viz., (of both Maisters at once) (and "The Children,") that a poore childe to be appoynted by the maister shall sweepe the schole and the leades, and call upon the Mercers from tyme to tyme for necessary reparations, and that the said poore childe shall haue iiij^d. at the admission of everie scholer, and the avayles of the scholers' uryne.

Wee doe ordeyne that from hensfourth some poore scholer or poore man (to be appointed from tyme to tyme by the highe maister) shall doe the same busines, and shall haue such allowance and avayles for his labor as are lymitted to the poor childe by the foundor.

Further, whereas there is a statute under this title, viz., "The Chapleyn." That there shall be a preiste or chapleyn to singe masse dailie in the chaple of the schole, and to pray that the children may prosper in good lief and good litterature, to the honour of god and our lord Christ Jhesus, and that the same preiste shall teache in the schole, if it shall seeme good to the highe maister. Wee doe nowe ordeine and establish that there shalbe from hensfourth an under usher instead of the said preist, who shall teach in the schole by the direction of the highe maister, and shalbe chosen from tyme to tyme by the maister, wardeins, and assistents of the Mercery, or the moste parte of them, for the tyme beinge, and contynue there so longe tyme as the saide maister, wardeins, and assistants, or the moste parte of them, for the tyme beinge, shall thinck fitt.

Wee doe further ordeyne, that noe other prayers or ceremonies shalbe used in the schole, but suche only as the lawes and statutes of this realme of Englande for the tyme beinge doe or shall permitt and allowe.

Further, whereas in another ordynance, under this title, viz., (The Children) it is said that a chyld, at the first admission, once for ever, shall pay iiij^d. for wrightinge of his name. This ordynance shalbe expounded that everie childe that shalbe admitted to be taught in the said schole shall haue his teachinge free duringe all the tyme of his contynuaunce there untill his departure, without anie further charge to be ymposed upon him or his freindes by the highe maister, surmaister and usher, or anie of them, over and above iiij^d. at his first admission to the poore scholer or poore man of the schole as aforesaid.

Further, whereas by another ordinance under the said title, (viz. "The Children,") it is provided that the children shall come unto the schole in the morninge at 7 of the clock, both wynter and sommer, and tarrie until 11, and retorne againe at one of the clock, and departe at five.

Wee doe ordeyne, that the highe maister, surmaister, and usher shalbe tied to the same howers, and in case they or anie of them shalbe absent from the schole over and above thirtie daies in one whole yeere to be taken conjunctim or divisim by the highe maister, and without the licence of the surveiors and highe maister, by the surmaister, and without the consent and licence of the surveiors for the tyme beinge by the usher, that then, for every such absence contrarie to the lymittacon aforesaid, the said maister, surmaister, and usher shall forfeit and pay so often as they or anie of them shall offende contrarie to the forme aforesaid, the some of vi^s. viii^d. for everie whole daie, and xii^d. for every hower that they or anie of them respectively shalbe absent from the said schole more than the said 30 daies as aforesaid, the same penalties to be defalked out of his or their wages respectively which shall offende.

Item. Whereas it is ordeined in the title, viz., "The Mercers," that in the daie of the givinge up of the surveyor's accompte, there shalbe a litle dynner not exceedinge the price of fowre nobles, forasmuch as divers learned men are usuallie there at that tyme to appose the schollers for the better information of the said maister, wardeins, and assistants of the profittinge of the schollers, in learninge and for that the assistants are nowe manie in number, and for that the rates and prises of victuals are nowe growne verie great in respect the same wear at the tyme of the makinge of the same ordinance, wee therefore doe ordeyne that from hensfourth so much shalbe allowed towards the same dynner as the maister, wardeins, and assistants of the Mercerie, or the more parte of them, for the tyme beinge, shall in their discretion thinck fitt, soe as the same be expended in frugall manner without excesse.

Further, whereas in the same title, (viz., "The Mercers,") there is this Caveatt that the landes of the schole should not be lett but by the space of five yeeres. It is nowe founde by experience verrie prejuditiall and not for the beste benefite of the schole to lett out the landes thereof for soe shorte a tyme, wee doe therefore ordeine and establish, that from hensfourth, it shalbe lafull to the maister, wardeins, and assistants of the Mercerie, or the more parte of them and their successors, for or in respect of newe buildinges upon anie of the landes to be leased respectively or repairinge of the same, or for the better manurance and betteringe of the same, and contynuinge the same together in one hande and in harte and strength, or anie such like good and valuable consideracion to demise anie of the landes or tenements apperteyninge to the same schole heretofore usuallie demised by lease and not by Copie of courte roll, as they and their successors shall from tyme to tyme in their wisdomes and discreacions thinck to be for the moste benefite of the schole, soe as the same lease or leases be made with reasonable condicions and covenannts on the lessee, his executors, administrators, and assignes, their parte to be perfourmed, and soe as the same lease or leases doe not exceede one and twentie yeres, and so as the same lease or leases be made in possession and not in reversion, and soe as the same be not without ympachment of waste, and soe as the yeerely rentes of the same be not thereby deminished but increased if conveniently and reasonably the same may be.

Further, whereas by the said ordinances the Founder doth lymitt and appointe sallaries and fees to the highe maister, surmaister, and others, as followith, viz. :—to the high maister, thirteene shillings fowre pence a weeke :—to the surmaister six shillings eightpence a weeke ; to the chaplein, eight pounds a yeere ; to the maister and wardeins of the Mercers, one and twentie shillings eight pence per annum ; to the surveiors, fowre poundes per annum ; to the said surveyors for visitinge the landes fowre poundes per annum if they ride ; to the stewarde fourtie shillings per annum ; to the clarke of the Mercers three shillings fowre pence per annum ; to the renter of the schole three and thirtie shillings foure pence per annum ; to the bailifes, fortie shillings per annum.

Forasmuch as the landes and tenements belonginge to the schole doe nowe yelde double soe muche rente as they did in the ffoundor's life-tyme, and for that all things necessarie are nowe grown to a farr dearer rate then they wear at the first foundation of the schole, wee doe therefore ordeyne and establish that as well the sallaries and fees appointed to the scholemaister, usher, and chaplein, as all other the fees before mentioned appointed to be paid by the ffoundor, shall from hencefourth be doubled accordinge to the ymprovement of the rentes aforesaid, the same increase of sallaries and fees to contynue untill such tyme as the maister, wardeins, and assistants of the Mercerye, or the more parte of them assembled in the schole-house, shall by reason of the fall of rentes or other juste considerations be occationed to abate the same.

Item. Whereas there is an ordinance in the same title, (viz., the Mercers) that the surplusage of monnie which shall remayne upon everie accompte shalbe put into an Iron Cheste standinge in the Mercers' Hall, and there remayne from yeere to yeere aparte by it self, that it might appear howe the schole by the owne selfe mainteynith it selfe. It is nowe ordeined that the same surplusage or suche parte thereof as the maister, wardeins, and assistants of the Mercerie and their successors shall thinck fitt, shall from hencefourth be employed either in exhibicons to poore schollers proceedinge from Paules schole to the universities or in fellowshippes or els lent out to poore younge men of the said Companie of Mercers upon good securitie (at the perill of the said Mercers) for the repayment thereof as to the said maister, wardeins, and assistants, or the more parte of them, shall from tyme to tyme be thought moste necessarie for the good of the schole.

Fynallie, wee ordein and establish that forasmuch as in the makinge of these ordinances and explanations the cheife care of the parties called hereunto was and is to haue the true intente and meaninge of the ffounder duly executed and performed in all things as tyme, place, and occation doth or shall permitt or require. That therefore all actes, Ordinances, and explanations heretofore made (if anie such be) other then by the said ffounder himself, shall from hencefourth be utterlie void and of none effect.

THO. FLEMYNG.
TH. FOSTER.

There is a further Amending Ordinance appended to the Statutes, dated February 6, 1841, and signed by Sir Frederick Pollock, Sir William Webb Follett, and William Palmer, but it is of no general interest, only extending the time for letting property on building leases from twenty-one to eighty years.

² See Colet's Statutes, under the heading "The Mercers."

³ A benefactor to the Company: he founded a school and almshouses at West Lavington in Wiltshire.

⁴ Sir Michael Dormer, a benefactor to the Company. Ancestor of Lord Dormer.

⁵ The Surveyor-Assistant of one year was usually the Surveyor-Accountant of the next; where I have observed that this was not the case, I have inserted the name of the Surveyor-Assistant.

⁶ Sir Richard Gresham, father of Sir Thomas Gresham. During his mayoralty he petitioned King Henry VIII. that the four hospitals within the City might be taken from the Canons, Priests, and Monks and placed under the government of the Mayor and Aldermen for the relief of the impotent and sick poor. This idea was afterwards carried out by King Edward VI. He also proposed the building of a bourse or exchange for the merchants of London, which design was afterwards carried into execution by his son.

In the Introduction it is stated that the Surveyor-Accountant was usually of late years the outgoing Master of the Company; the fact being that having been elected Master in the summer, he was usually elected Surveyor-Accountant in the following spring or (latterly) summer; when the Member of the Court next in succession to the Chair would be chosen Surveyor-Assistant. In ancient times it would appear that the Surveyor-Accountant was sometimes chosen without any reference to the Mastership.

SCHOOL (PAULINE) EXHIBITIONS.

The following Resolutions refer to the establishment of these Exhibitions:—

At a Court of Assistants holden 2 June 1564 attention was called to “the publication and zealous exhortation of the preachers in their several distinct sermons made the Spital without Bishopsgate this Easter holidays now last past for certain Fellowships to find Two Scholars a year to the number of 12 Company’s. Whereupon when this assembly had heard the said matter opened they liked the motion thereof very well and bare their good minds and zeales to the furtherance and maintenance thereof. Whereupon it was by this Assembly fully and wholly condescended, concluded and agreed, that this Fellowship is well contented to find at this time one scholar or more to the University at their proper cost and charge to continue in the University during their freewill minds and pleasure and as touching the sum of money towards the Exhibition and finding of the said one Scholar or more Scholars is by this assembly agreed to be xij. lib. vij. viij^d. so always the Fellowships full minds and consents is that the aptest and most meetest Scholars in Paul's School to be advanced and preferred to the University and specially Mercers children of this Fellowship if any such may be found apt and meet there to be preferred and advanced to the Company's Exhibitions now granted before any others."

26th of July, 1564.

Articles were sent by the Bishop of London and the Court directed two of the Wardens to notify that they were willing to found two Exhibitions of 10 marks each per annum for one graduate (B.A.) in Oxford and one in Cambridge, to be appointed by the Company from time to time and the Exhibition to continue during the Company's pleasure.

These Exhibitions were originally of the annual value of £5; about 1610 they were increased to £10. On the 7th February, 1752, they were raised to £20; in 1768 the Exhibitions were paid at the rate of £30, and in 1773 at the rate of £40; they were subsequently raised to £50; finally in 1844 one Exhibition of £120 a year was charged annually to the School Funds, together with one or more of the value of £50.

At first the duration of the tenure of the Exhibitions seems to have been variable, but in 1612 Alexander Gill was elected for ten years, which seems to have been the usual length of tenure at that time. After 1648 the tenure appears generally as seven years, but this was reduced to five in 1827, and finally to four in 1847.

CAMPDEN EXHIBITIONS.

These Exhibitions were founded by the Will of Sir Baptist Hicks, Viscount Campden, as appears by the abstract below: to this abstract no date is attached, but the Will was made October 13, 1629. Lord Campden died in 1629, and Lord Northumberland (referred to in the Will) in 1632. The first Exhibitioners were appointed in 1634, when the Company undertook to advance the necessary funds until the money came in from the property bequeathed for the Foundation. The Exhibitions were originally of the value of £10 per annum.

An abstract taken out of my Lord Viscount Campden's Will:—

And whereas I have an Estate of inheritance in fee farme after the decease of the Right Honble the now Earle of Northumberland of and in a certain porcion of Tithes ariseing comeing increaseing and growing within the Territories Feilds and Hamletts of Woodhorne Woodhorne Seaton Wytherington Creswell Horton als Horneton Hirst Errington and Linton all which premises were pcel of the Rectory of Woodhorne in the County of Northumberland and late were pcell of the lands and possessions of the late Monastery of Timmouth in the said County The one moyety of all which Tithes.

And the other moyety of the said Tithes I give and bequeath to the Company and Fellowship of the Mercers in London for the better maintenance and advancement of such Scholler and Schollers as from time to time for ever from and after the death of the said Earle of Northumberland shall bee preferred from Paules Schoole to Trinity Colledge in Cambridge and when such Scholler and Schollers shall come to better preferment from Trinitie Colledge then my Will is that such other Scholler or Schollers of Paules Schoole that bee fittinge to bee preferred to Trinity Colledge aforesaid shall have the benefitt of this my gift.

In 1802 (Lady Day) the Exhibitions were made of the value of £50 each, tenable for seven years. On January 18, 1810, it was decided that there should be Six Exhibitions of £100 a year each. On March 19, 1812, it was resolved that only one should be given annually; on March 30, 1815, the resolution of January 18, 1810, was rescinded, and on March 14, 1816, the resolution of March 19, 1812, was rescinded. On February 19, 1818, the number of Exhibitions was raised to Eight, and subsequently, on April 2 of the same year, to Nine—but on November 1, 1827, it was resolved that only one Exhibition should be given annually till the number was reduced to Five.

In 1838 there were Ten Campden Exhibitions, tenable for five years: in 1841 their values were one annually of £100 and one or more of £70. These latter were in 1844 increased to £80. In 1847 the tenure was reduced to four years. These regulations continued in force till 1871, after which the Exhibitions vary considerably in number and value; nor were the holders any longer compelled to go to Trinity College, Cambridge. In 1875 a new scheme came into force which is appended.

Scheme for the management of Lord Campden's Exhibitions for Scholars proceeding from St. Paul's School in London to any College in either of the Universities of Oxford or Cambridge.

1. The object of the above-named Trust shall be to promote liberal education.

2. From the date of this Scheme all the particulars which by the Endowed Schools Act, 1869, sec. 46, are capable of being hereby repealed and abrogated, shall, so far as relates to the management of the Trust, but not to the vesting of the property thereof in the Mercers' Company, hereinafter called the Company, be repealed and abrogated.

3. From and after the date of this Scheme the Governing Body of the Trust shall be a Governing Body, hereinafter called the Governors, established under the provisions of a Scheme framed by the Endowed Schools Commissioners, and entitled a "Scheme for the management of St. Paul's School in London founded by Dean Colet."

4. The property of the Trust shall continue to be vested in and managed by the Company, and the accounts thereof shall be subject to the like provisions as the accounts of the estates and property of St. Paul's School are subject to under clauses 9, 10, and 11, of the aforesaid Scheme for the management of St. Paul's School. The Company shall pay the net income of the Property of the Trust to the Governors at such times and intervals and in such manner as may be authorised or prescribed from time to time by the Charity Commissioners; and such net income shall be applied by the Governors in accordance with the provisions in that behalf contained in the said Scheme for the management of St. Paul's School.¹ Provided that this Scheme shall not affect the tenure by any person of any Exhibition payable out of the endowments of the Trust, which was held by him, or had been awarded to him on or before the date of this Scheme.

5. If at any time any doubt or question arises among the Governors, or between the Company and the Governors, as to the proper construction or application of any of the provisions of this Scheme, the Governors, and the Company, if necessary, shall apply to the Charity Commissioners for their opinion and advice thereon, which opinion and advice when given shall be binding on the Governors, and on the Company if concerned.

6. The Charity Commissioners may, upon the application of the Company or of the Governors, from time to time in the exercise of their ordinary jurisdiction frame Schemes for the alteration of any provisions of this Scheme, provided that such Schemes be not inconsistent with the first clause of this Scheme, or with anything contained in the Endowed Schools Acts 1869 and 1873.

7. The Governors shall cause this Scheme to be printed and a copy to be given to every person who shall become a Governor.

8. The date of this Scheme shall be the day on which Her Majesty by order in Council declares Her approbation of it, or the day immediately after the date of the said Scheme for the management of St. Paul's School, whichever shall last happen.

June 21, 1875.

Approved,
RICHMOND.

St. Paul's School Scheme, § 75.

The Governors shall in each year employ the net income payable to them under the provisions of a Scheme framed by the Endowed Schools Commissioners for the management of Lord Campden's Exhibitions or such portion thereof being as near as may be the sum of £1,000, as they deem expedient in the establishment and maintenance of Exhibitions to be awarded annually by open competition among boys who have been educated at the Classical School for such time previous to the award thereof as the Governors may from time to time determine and to be tenable at any University or other place of liberal education to be approved in each case by the Governors.

SIR ROBERT WOOD'S SCHOLARSHIP.

Sir Robert Wood, Knt., of Islington (who was buried November 11, 1662), gave the messuage or tenement of the Plough, with the two tenements adjoining, called the Bottle-house and the Bear in Barnwell for the founding of three Scholarships, in St. John's College, Cambridge. The three scholars are to be elected by the master and senior fellows of the College: (1) of such scholars as have learned or do learn at the Free Grammar School at Westminster and are of the 6th or 7th form of the School, and in default of such, then (2) out of the scholars of the Free School of St. Paul's, London, and Merchant Taylors', or any other school within the city of London, or county of Middlesex, according as the master and seniors of the said College shall think in their conscience most deserving.

This Scholarship does not appear to have been ever held by Paulines.

IV.

PERRY EXHIBITIONS.

These Exhibitions were founded by the Will of William Perry, Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge, and lecturer of St. Peter's-upon-Cornhill, who was educated at St. Paul's School, and Campden Exhibitioner, 1671, as annexed.

In the Will of William Perry Fellow of Trinity College in Cambridge deceased dated 30th June 1696 is as follows:—

I doe give one thousand pounds current money of England to the Reverend Dr. Thomas Gale, Dr. in Divinity and Master of St. Paul's School in London to be disposed of by him with all convenient speed and to the best advantage he can in lands or a rent charge or both for such and soe many Exhibitions for Schollars going forth at the opposiçon of St. Paul's School in London to Trinity Colledge in Cambridge and according to such Orders as I have or shall hereafter appoint or in defect of such appointment and orders by me then for such and soe many Exhibitions as the said Dr. Thomas Gale shall think meet.

These are the Orders and directions mentioned in my Will which I designe and desire may be taken as part of my Will and accepted by Trinity Colledge in Cambridge or the Company of Mercers London and Ratified by them

1. That these five Exhibitions shall be bestowed as they become void at the opposition of the School of St. Pauls London and not at any other Court of the Mercers.

2. That each Scholar shall receive the summe of tenn pounds yearly for eight years successively to be reckoned from the first receipt inclusive (if he continue soe long in Trinity Colledge in Cambridge) and not longer but the Exhibition to be then actually void.

3. That each Scholar at each receipt of his due shall shew to the Clerke of the Mercers a true Testimonial of his residence in the said Colledge and of his virtuous studious and religious carriage before he receive any part of that his Exhibition.

4. That the Arrears which may happen to be upon any Exhibition falling void within the year shall be paid to the next that succeedeth into such Exhibition according to the laudable practice of the Mercers in the like case in the Ld. Camdens Exhibitions.

5. That the Company of the Mercers shall be desired to take the advice and opinion of the Upper Master in S. Paul's School in the disposall of these Exhibitions at the Court of the Opposicōn yearly appointed by Dr. Collet Founder of the School of S. Pauls.

6. That the Master and Senior Fellows in Trinity Colledge Cambridge shall p'ferr in seniority of each year the Scholars of St. Paul's Schools (see as above admitted in Trinity Colledge) next to those Scholars of Westminster School.

7. That the Company of Mercers shall be desired to ratifye one certaine Order mencōned and approved at the opposicōn Anno 1695 vizt. That all Schollers who shall obtain Exhibitions from the Mercery shall admitt themselves Students of Trinity Colledge in Cambridge except the Exhibitions be otherwise limited by the first Donor or Donors.

The College had some difficulty in recovering the money from the Executors of the Rev. Dr. Gale, who died in 1702.¹ When it came into their hands, they invested it in an estate at Tendring in Essex, which in 1724 maintained 5 poor scholars at £5 each: the value of the Exhibitions was subsequently increased to £13; they appear to have been tenable till the holder was of M.A. standing. This endowment is reorganised under the new Statutes of Trinity College Cambridge as follows:—

Statutes for Trinity College, Cambridge, under the Act 1877.

LXIII.—MR. PERRY'S EXHIBITIONS.

1701.—1. The trusts annexed to the exhibitions founded under the will of the Rev. William Perry are hereby repealed and abrogated.

2. Out of the yearly income of the trust there shall be maintained two exhibitions each of the yearly value of forty pounds (£40) and tenable for two years at the College to be awarded according to the result of an examination open only to persons of such age being not greater than twenty-one years as the Council shall from time to time determine, who are or within two years from the date of the award have been scholars at St. Paul's School. Notice of any such examination shall be sent to the High Master of St. Paul's School.

3. No exhibition shall be awarded in any year in which the examiners report that there is no fit candidate qualified as aforesaid to hold the exhibition. The money so remaining unapplied shall be accumulated, and invested as hereinafter provided.

4. All expenses for examiners or otherwise incident to these exhibitions shall be defrayed out of the income of the trust. The residue (if any) in each year shall be accumulated, and whenever the accumulations shall amount to one hundred pounds (£100) beyond the necessary current balance they shall be invested in Government or real securities for the above, and the estate was leased in 1707 for eleven years.

general purposes of the trust. The Council may, at their discretion, apply the income arising from such accumulations, or any part thereof, in increasing either temporarily or permanently the number of the exhibitions or the value of either or of both of them.

5. Subject to the above provisions the Council shall have power to make regulations for determining the conditions of award and tenure of the exhibitions and all other matters relating thereto.

GOWER EXHIBITIONS.

These Exhibitions were founded at St. John's College, Cambridge, by Dr. Humphrey Gower, who appears to have been at St. Paul's School about 1651 (see page 45), by Will as annexed.

In the Will of Humphry Gower Doctor in Divinity and Master of St. John's College in the University of Cambridge deceased dated July 10 1708 is as follows.

But still further to express my respects to the Colledge and likewise to the two Schooles in which I was prepared for the University my Will is that twenty pounds issuing out of the proffitts of this my estate in Thriplow be yearly paid into the hands of the Senior Bursar of the said Colledge for the time being for ever by the Master of the Colledge for the time being to whom by this my Will I have given the proffitts of the said estate with exception which is this here expressed there needs no more I suppose to secure such payment to the Colledge seeing they have here to doe with no other then their own Master who will deal justly with them but my intention is that the Colledge shall have as full right to twenty pounds per annum of the rents of this estate at Thriplow afore said as I can convey to them and as full power to demand collect and receive the same as the Law allowes for any rent charge whatsoever for the use and purpose that now followes my Will and meaning is that this yearly revenue and rent charge of twenty pounds be paid by the Colledge by way of Exhibition for the maintenance of two indigent Scholars for ever to be qualified as hereafter follows First that the said Exhibitions be never bestowed on any but sons of Clergymen Orthodox and regular according to the Constitution of the Church of England as by law established in the next place that none shall be ordinarily capable of either of the said Exhibitions but such as have been three years at least at St. Pauls School in London or in the Free School in Dorchester in Dorsetshire understanding hereby the three last years of their Schooling so that they may come immediately from these Schools respectively to the University and my Will is that in case of two Competitors from the same School he that has been longest and received most of his School education in the said School shall be judged to have the best plea and be accordingly preferred to the Exhibition rather than the other unless there be a preponderancy of worth on the side of his Competitor and my Will is that in defect of such qualified candidate from either of the Schooles aforesaid at (or within six months after) the vacancy of either of the afore said Exhibitions the said Exhibition shall be bestowed on that of the two Schooles that shall have a Scholar ready in the Colledge and qualified in other respects tho thereby one of the Schooles by that means that turn happens to enjoy the advantage of both exhibitions but in defect of any from either of the said Schooles if there be none at all I mean duly qualified appearing (at or within six months after) the vacancy of one or both of the said Exhibitions in the aforesaid Colledge my Will is that in such case the said Exhibition or Exhibitions may be bestowed on indigent deserving sons of Clergymen tho coming from other Schooles if duly qualified in other respects according to the Judgement of the Master and Seniors of the said Colledge for the time being but if there be no such then shall the said Exhibitions be kept void till such qualified youths shall be admitted into the Colledge from the aforesaid Schooles or such not appearing from thence (even after notice given to the said Schooles of their respective vacancies) from any other School whatsoever And further my Will and meaning is that the sons of Clergymen deceased shall cœteris paribus be preferred to these my Exhibitions before others And my Will is that none but a Sizar shall be capable of being chosen into or of holding the said Exhibitions which therefore shall become void upon their being admitted into a Scholarship It being my design hereby to make provision for the most indigent which such ordinarily are not who can find means to maintain themselves at the University in one of the Scholarships but my meaning is that otherwise these my Exhibitioners may enjoy the benefit of their Exhibitions till the Feast of the Annunciation of the B. Virgin which shall immediately precede the commencement of that year in which they shall (or by standing may) take the degree of Master of Arts or unless they be otherwise preferred.

They seem to have been seldom claimed by Paulines; and the Pauline claim to them is supposed to have been lost by disuse at the Cambridge University Commission of 1850.

SYKES EXHIBITIONS.

These Exhibitions were founded in 1766 by the Will of the Rev. George Sykes, who had been educated at St. Paul's School, and was Exhibitioner in 1707, as annexed.

In the Will of the Rev. George Sykes late of Preston by Faversham in the County of Kent deceased dated November 24 1763 is as follows:—

I give and bequeath unto the Master and Fellows of Corpus Christi College alias Benet College in Cambridge one thousand pounds to be put into the funds or otherwise to use in trust that the profits arising from thence might be applied to the support and maintenance of four Scholars educated in Saint Pauls School London afterwards admitted into the said College which Scholarship shall be allowed them until they are of Master of Arts standing in the University if so be they are of good behaviour improving themselves in learning and remain there Subject to the Statutes of the College until they are of that standing otherwise my will is that their Scholarships shall be voided and other persons shall be chosen out of any College in the University if they have been educated in the School or from the School itself to supply their places my Will is likewise that if at any time any of these Scholars after they have taken their Bachelor's degree and they shall be competently provided for by any means their Scholarships shall be vacated to make room for others.

Originally four Exhibitions of the value of £10 a year each, there is now one Exhibition of £36 a year, under the Corpus Christi College Statutes of 1861:—

Statutes sanctioned by the Queen in Council, April 16, 1861.

SYKES EXHIBITIONS.

From the date of the confirmation of this Statute by Her Majesty in Council, there shall be no further Election to any of the four Exhibitions founded by Mr. Sykes in 1768, for Scholars educated at St. Paul's School.

In lieu thereof, there shall be established at Corpus Christi College one Exhibition of the value of thirty-six pounds a year, for a Scholar from the said School.

No person shall be entitled to present himself as a Candidate for such Exhibition who has not been educated at St. Paul's School for the space of three years at least.

The Candidates for such Exhibition shall be examined in such manner as the Master and Fellows of Corpus Christi College shall from time to time direct, in order to ascertain their fitness to become Students of the College.

In default of any duly qualified Candidate from St. Paul's School, the Exhibition then vacant shall be treated as open to general competition.

The Exhibitioner shall be subject to such regulations as to residence, instruction, and discipline, as the Master and Fellows shall from time to time determine, and may be deprived of, or suspended from, his Exhibition by the Master and Fellows for any misconduct which shall, in their judgment, merit such deprivation or suspension.

The Exhibition shall be tenable until the person holding it shall be of standing to take the degree of Bachelor of Arts, or, if the Master and Fellows of Corpus Christi College think fit, until he is of standing to take the degree of Master of Arts, but no longer.

STOCK EXHIBITION.

Mr. John Stock, citizen and draper of London, by his Will dated the 26th of February, 1780, among various other bequests, directs:—

Also, by a regard for promoting Religion and Learning, and paying a respect to the Merit and Reputation of an eminent Grammar School of the City of London, viz. St. Paul's Grammar School, in St. Paul's Church-yard, belonging to The Worshipful Company of Mercers, London, I do will and bequeath One Thousand Pounds, Three per Cent. Consolidated Bank Annuities, for my Executors to transfer and pay within one year, or Eighteen Calendar Months next after my decease, to The Master and Fellows of Corpus Christi College alias Bene't College, of The University of Cambridge, the said Annuity Stock now standing in my name; but nevertheless, the same is to be paid to, or received by them, upon the conditions following: That they do agree to accept, have, and take, from time to time, into their said College, a Scholar, to be presented by The Master and Wardens of the Worshipful Company of Mercers, being best and well qualified, recommended by The Head Master, in Learning, by a Public Examination, as annually performed before The Master, Wardens, and Committee of the said Company, by them and the said Master, well approved by a Certificate, signed properly, confirmed, and recommended to the said College; And that he hath been a Scholar three or four years at the said School, and also at the time of his being presented, and hath spoken a Public Latin Oration at the above-mentioned time of Annual Examination; and is to be between the age of Eighteen and Twenty years, of good character and behaviour, born in wedlock, of Protestant Parents, as by law established, whose Parents are of indigent, low circumstances, and not capable to defray the expense of University Education, and stands in need of my Exhibition; that he is free from lameness, deafness, defect of sight or speech, or any bodily ailment; and that such Scholar shall, from time to time, have and receive, such part of the Interest arising from the said One Thousand Pounds Annuity Stock; And that it be appropriated, as it becomes due, for the use, benefit, and towards the support and maintenance of the said Scholar, and succeeding Scholars, during their continuance at the said College, paid by the hands of a proper person; but that the Sum of £15 (being One-half of the annual Interest) shall always be kept in hand as Deposit-money, for defraying any expenses that may arise to or at The College, in case of sickness, death, or debts, during the time of his continuance at College; And that when and so often as such £15, or any part thereof, shall be necessarily expended, or paid on account of such sickness, death, or debts, that then the same shall be always replaced, or made good, within one year after, or to be deducted out of the annual allowance, or income, arising from the said Interest money: That the Interest be paid in such manner, and due course of time, as is usual and customary in cases of Donations by Will, Deed, or Benefaction to Colleges; and that it is to be agreed with The Master and Fellows of the said College, for the Scholars to have their Lodging and Board within the said College, in the same manner as other Collegians, by constantly residing therein; And that each Scholar, who by Study and Merit in Learning, shall be found worthy of Preferment in College, may have the right of advancement and promotion on The Foundation in succession, like as other Collegians do: That every such Scholar doth strictly conform to all such Customs, Statutes, Laws, Orders, and Regulations, belonging to the said College and University; And that he doth keep his regular Exercises, and perform such directions, under his Tutor, in the improvement of his Learning and Study; and that he be duly and constantly observed, that he doth not absent himself from College, without leave first, by a proper officer, regularly obtained: That no Scholar shall be absent more than Four months, till he has commenced Bachelor of Arts; nor more than Six months in any one year, till after he has commenced Master of Arts; That his continuance be not more than Seven Years at College; and that the said Scholar be subject to the Statute of Restraint, De Exitu ab Universitate et Veniâ, cap. 27th, as of Fellows and Scholars by deprivation; And that no Scholar shall ever presume to go out of The University without the Master's leave, or in his absence the Tutor's leave, first asked and obtained, and that, forfeited by the said Statute; and are obliged to enter their Exit in the Book appointed for that purpose, or where the Master shall require it to be done; that thus it may appear, from his Redit, which he is carefully to signify in the same manner, as soon as he doth return, how much time he hath spent abroad. And my desire is, that the neglect of this article be punished according to the Statute above mentioned, viz. That such Scholar shall have, on neglect and absence, a mulct deducted out of his Exhibition, and applied to the use of The College; and he shall be liable to such mulct as The Master or President shall think proper, not exceeding 40s. for the first, second, or third time, on each offence; and on the fourth offence of absence or neglect, he shall forfeit my Exhibition, and not partake of any further benefit thereof; but what may occasion an absence accidental beyond the time before specified and allowed, unless by Sickness, or the hand of God, otherwise disabling the Exhibitioner's return in due time to College, my Will is, that such accident and occasion of absence be fully satisfied, to be real and true, to the satisfaction of The Master and Fellows for the time being, or otherwise, that the excuse be not admitted as a bar to the deprivation.

The Exhibition is now managed under a new Statute of Corpus Christi College, sanctioned by the Council of the University of Oxford, April 16, 1861.

STOCK EXHIBITION.

From the date of the confirmation of this Statute, there shall be no further election to the Exhibition at Corpus Christi College founded by Mr. John Stock in 1581, at St. Paul's School.

In lieu thereof there shall be established an Exhibition of the value of Thirty Pounds a year at St. Paul's School and recommended by the Headmaster.

No person shall be entitled to present himself for the Exhibition who has not been educated at St. Paul's School for three years at least.

The Candidates for such Exhibition shall be examined by the Master and Fellows of Corpus Christi College, at such time and place as they may direct, in order to ascertain their fitness to receive the Exhibition.

In default of any duly qualified Candidate for the Exhibition then vacant shall be treated as open to all.

The Exhibitioner shall be subject to such regulations, instruction, and discipline, as the Master and Fellows may from time to time determine, and may be deprived of, or suspended from, the Exhibition by the Master and Fellows for any misconduct, or for want of merit, such deprivation or suspension.

The Exhibition shall be tenable until the person receiving it shall have taken the degree of Bachelor of Arts, or until the Master and Fellows of Corpus Christi College think fit, until the person receiving it shall have taken the degree of Master of Arts, but no longer.

THE THOMAS BARNES SCHOOL.

John Barnes, Esq., of the Middle Temple, London, has given by Will the sum of £2000, 3 per cent. Consolidated Bank of certain Trustees, upon Trust, that during the Barnes, the dividends and annual income thereof be applied for her use and benefit, or upon certain contingencies, for the benefit of the said Trustees, and that after her death the said Bank Annuities be transferred to the Chancellor, Masters and Scholars of this University, upon Trust, for the foundation of a Scholarship, to be called "The Thomas Barnes Scholarship," in memory of his Brother Thomas Barnes, M.A., deceased, late of Pembroke College. This proposal was accepted by grace, February 7, 1844. The following are the Regulations:—

* * * * *

3. That the Candidates for the Scholarship shall be Undergraduates in their first year, and that Undergraduates shall be deemed to be in their first year, if of not more than one year's standing from the time of their first residence; and that this further qualification shall be requisite, viz., that the Candidates shall have been educated on the Foundation of Christ's Hospital, St. Paul's School, or the Merchant Taylors' School, in the city of London, and shall have come to the University directly from one of those Schools; but that if in any case there be found no Candidate so circumstanced, who in the opinion of the Electors is fit to be elected, then the said Scholarship for that turn only shall be thrown open to all the Undergraduates of the University, who are, according to the terms above specified, in their first year.

4. That every Scholar elected on this Foundation shall promise in writing to take a Degree in the most regular manner, by performing the Exercises and undergoing the Examinations appointed by the University for that purpose, and, in case of such promise being broken, the Scholarship shall be ipso facto vacant.

5. That the Scholar shall be entitled to the profits of the Scholarship for a period of four years, unless he shall before the expiration of that period die, degrade, go out in a Bye Term, or be rusticated or expelled, in either of which cases the Scholarship shall be ipso facto vacant.

GOVERNORS' PRIZES.

1. The Governors' Prize for Latin Hexameters appears to have been founded in the year 1815. There is no record in the Company's books of the foundation of this Prize, but a letter from Dr. Sleath on the 13th March, 1816, was read to the Court of the Mercers' Company on the 23rd May in that year, in which it is said, that the Prizes for the best compositions, to be recited at the Apposition, were instituted at the then last Apposition, with the full approbation of Mr. R. M. Barnard, who was then Surveyor-Accountant.

2. A Prize was also given for English Verse, which was afterwards merged in the Milton Prize.

3. From 1840 to 1846 the English Prize appears to have been diverted from Verse to an Essay; it subsequently became the second prize in the Truro competition, but ceased to be given in 1863.

4. The prize for Greek Verse (usually Iambics), appears to have been first given in 1828.

5. In 1878-79, the Governors' Prize for Latin Verse was transferred to French Composition.

THRUSTON PRIZE.

This Prize was founded in memory of Framingham William Thruston, who died suddenly of cholera September 12, 1849, by his mother and Dr. Kynaston, the High Master. It was first given in 1851, and was appropriated to Latin Lyrics, to be prepared for the Winter Speeches. It continued in the hands of Dr. Kynaston till 1876, when shortly after his retirement the following scheme was arranged, and the prize was appropriated to Latin Verse:—

Declaration of Trust of the Thruston Prize.

Whereas in or about the year One thousand eight hundred and forty-nine, a fund amounting to the sum of Two hundred pounds was, by the instrumentality of the Reverend Herbert Kynaston, D.D., late a Prebendary of the Cathedral Church of Saint Paul in the City of London, and High Master of the school called or known as St. Paul's School in London, founded by Dean Colet, raised by voluntary contributions, with the object of founding a prize for Latin verse composition in the aforesaid school in memory of Framingham William Thruston, formerly a scholar in the said school, who died on the twelfth September, One thousand eight hundred and forty-nine, to be called the "Thruston Memorial Prize."

And whereas it was one of the conditions upon which the aforesaid fund was so constituted, as aforesaid, that out of the income to arise from the due investment thereof, the stone over the grave of the said Framingham William Thruston, in the Cemetery called or known as "The Highgate Cemetery," in the County of Middlesex, together with the inscription thereon and the appurtenances thereto belonging be always kept and maintained in proper order and repair.

And whereas until the date hereinafter mentioned the aforesaid fund remained in the hands or under the control of the said Herbert Kynaston, and during his tenure of the office of High Master of the said school (which was determined in the month of December, One thousand eight hundred and seventy-six), a suitable prize for Latin verse composition in the aforesaid school was regularly provided and awarded by him.

And whereas the said Herbert Kynaston on the twenty-eighth day of September, One thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, paid to the then Governors of the aforesaid school, in respect of the aforesaid fund, the sum of Two hundred pounds, together with the further sum of Twelve pounds, as and for interest thereon for the years One thousand eight hundred and seventy-seven and One thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight, during which respectively no such prize as aforesaid was provided and awarded, upon condition that the said Governors should apply the income to arise from the due investment of the said sums of Two hundred pounds and Twelve pounds, making together the sum of Two hundred and twelve pounds, for the several objects for which the aforesaid fund was so contributed as aforesaid.

And whereas the present Governors of the aforesaid school are desirous of paying, with the authority of the Charity Commissioners for England and Wales, to the banking account of "The Official Trustees of Charitable Funds," at the Bank of England, the aforesaid sum of Two hundred and twelve pounds, in order that the same sum may be invested by the said Official Trustees in the purchase in their names of Three pounds per cent. Consolidated Bank annuities, and that the income to arise from the said investment may be applied to the purposes hereinafter mentioned.

And whereas the said Governors have been required by the said Commissioners previously to such payment to declare the intended trusts of the aforesaid sum of Two hundred and twelve pounds.

Now, therefore, the Governors of the aforesaid school do by this Instrument in writing, under the hand and seal of Lieutenant-Colonel Frederick Palmer, the Chairman of the said Governors, duly authorised in that behalf, by a Resolution passed at a duly constituted meeting of the said Governors, held on the seventh day of March, One thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine, declare that the aforesaid sum of Two hundred and Twelve pounds is proposed to be paid by the said Governors or by their procurement to the aforesaid banking account of the said Official Trustees, under the order of the said Commissioners, upon trust that the income to arise from the investment thereof may for ever thereafter be paid or remitted by the said Official Trustees unto the Governing Body of the boys' schools, in connection with the foundation called or known as St. Paul's School in London, founded by Dean Colet, constituted under the authority of a scheme for the management of the aforesaid foundation established under the provisions of the Endowed Schools Act on the twenty-fourth day of March, One thousand eight hundred and seventy-six, and their successors, or unto such person or persons as shall for the time being be authorised by them to receive the same as the trustees of the Charity intended to be hereby created, but for the joint account and disposal of the said governing body upon trust to be applied by them or under their direction to the following purposes, that is to say:— In the first place, to keep and maintain in proper order and repair the stone over the grave of the said Framingham William Thruston, in the aforesaid Highgate Cemetery, together with the inscription thereon and the appurtenances thereto belonging, and subject thereto to found a suitable prize or suitable prizes, consisting of Books for Latin verse (the metre and the subject of which shall be determined by the High Master for the time being of the aforesaid school) to be awarded annually in the result of open competition on "Apposition Day" to scholars in the eighth or highest class of the Classical Department of the school in connection with the aforesaid foundation called or known as St. Paul's School.

And the said Governors do hereby further declare it to be their desire that the Charity intended to be hereby created shall be called "The Thruston Memorial Prize" or "Prizes."

In witness whereof the said Frederick Palmer, as Chairman and on behalf of the said Governors, hath hereunto set his hand and seal this thirteenth day of June, One thousand eight hundred and seventy-nine.

F. PALMER, Lt.-Col.,
Chairman.

TRURO AND MILTON PRIZES.

The Truro and Milton Prizes were founded under the following circumstances. Early in the year 1851 the following letter was addressed to the High Master by Sir Charles Clarke:—

MY DEAR DR. KYNASTON,

If it shall be agreeable to the Mercers' Company and to yourself, I propose to invest £100 in the name of the Company or of the High Master for the time being of St. Paul's School, the interest to be laid out annually in the purchase of a copy of the works of John Milton handsomely bound. I wish that the first presentation shall take place at the next Apposition, and as there is hardly time to determine for what description of merit the Prize shall be awarded, I wish that the Prize shall this year be given either to the head boy or to one of the other boys who may have excelled in English Composition.

CHARLES M. CLARKE.

¹ In this year the Fund was appropriated to the repair of Thruston's tomb.

The High Master then addressed the following letter to the Surveyor-Accountant on the subject not only of Sir Charles Clarke's letter but also of Lord Truro's offer.

ST. PAUL'S SCHOOL,
May 7, 1851.

MY DEAR SIR,

I enclose a note which I received some time ago from our friend Sir Charles Clarke to which I replied at once thankfully accepting so far as I am concerned his very kind and sensible proposal. I promised to communicate with you on the subject, but could not conveniently do so till I heard further from the Lord Chancellor in respect of a somewhat similar scheme conceived by his Lordship for the benefit of St. Paul's School, the alma mater for whom he ceases not to feel and display the most generous regard. I had only yesterday an opportunity of learning his Lordship's wishes, which are as follows: "to transfer to the Mercers' Company the munificent sum of £1000, and with the annual interest, say 30 guineas, found a Prize for an English Essay to be called the Chancellor's Prize, to be given to the Scholar who shall write the best Essay on a given subject or be considered most deserving of praise in the general exercises of the year in that department of composition." Lord Truro wishes a Prize to be awarded this next Apposition. This I have explained can hardly be done as the time is so short and the boys so much occupied in preparing for their Examination: but I have suggested a plan which is highly approved, namely that his Lordship's generous intention should be announced and a subject set at the Apposition and the Prize awarded early in July next; and the books or purse of money presented after the School Prizes are distributed early in the same month. . . .

H. KYNASTON, D.D.

W. PALMER, ESQ.

The matter was referred to the Surveyors of St. Paul's School by Order of the Court of Assistants of the 9th May to enquire and report how the generous intentions of the Lord Chancellor and Sir Charles Clarke as communicated in the High Master's letter might be best carried out: and they reported as follows:—

That, having considered the present arrangements respecting Prizes at St. Paul's School, conferred with the High Master respecting the Prizes now proposed to be added, and more particularly ascertained the intentions and desires of the intended (sic) donors, they recommend as follows:—

(1) That the sum of £1000 offered by the present Lord Chancellor or so much thereof as may purchase £1000 Stock be invested in the Company's name in £3 per cent. Consols upon trust to annually apply the dividends thence arising to the perpetual maintenance of an annual Prize for a Scholar of St. Paul's School to be styled "The Chancellor's Prize, founded by the Lord High Chancellor Baron Truro for the reward of learning." The Surveyors further recommend that this Prize should consist of a gold medal of the value of ten guineas, having on one side the head of Colet, and on the other an appropriate inscription with the Chancellor's motto, "Equabiliter et diligenter," and the Scholar's name on the rim; and the residue in money or books at the Scholar's option; that it should be awarded for the best English Essay in Prose Composition upon a subject annually appointed by the High Master; that all Scholars of the Eighth or highest class be required to write for this Prize; that the comparative merits of the Prize Compositions be determined by the two examiners of the School or by the High Master as Umpire between them should they differ in their judgements, and that this Prize should be annually declared at the Apposition, the Compositions being written and submitted to the Examiners by a certain day to be fixed beforehand; lastly, that a power should be reserved for the Court of Assistants with the consent of the founder during his life but afterwards at their discretion to alter any particulars in the regulations of this Prize as regards the particular excellence for which it shall be given, the competitors, and the mode and time of the award, so as to render it most conducive to the reward and encouragement of sound learning in accordance with the desire of the noble founder and the general object of the School.

(2) As regards the £100 offered by Sir Charles M. Clarke and which is now ready at command, the Surveyors recommend that this likewise should be invested in the Company's name in £3 per cent. Consols upon trust to annually apply the dividends thence arising for the perpetual maintenance of an annual Prize for a Scholar of St. Paul's School to be styled "The Milton Prize, founded by Sir Charles Mansfield Clarke, Bart." This Prize to consist of a copy of Milton's Poetical Works, and to be given for the best Composition in English Verse not exceeding 150 lines upon a subject to be annually appointed by the High Master, especially of a sacred nature, and to be open to the free competition of all the Scholars of the Seventh and Eighth in the two highest classes who may desire to write for it—the comparative merits of the Compositions to be determined by the two Examiners of the School and the High Master (as Umpire) in case they should differ, and that this Prize should be annually declared at the Apposition, the Prize Compositions being written and submitted to the Examiners by a day to be fixed beforehand, but that the Court should retain power to make any alterations they may deem convenient either as regards the competition for this Prize or the manner or time of its award.

The Surveyors feel authorised to state that the above recommendations if approved of by the Court will be readily carried out by the Lord Chancellor and Sir Charles M. Clarke, and will have the approbation of the High Master of the School, who has given them every assistance. They cannot conclude without expressing the high satisfaction they have felt in witnessing the ready and earnest manner in which both the above-named distinguished Paulines have thus come forward to testify their grateful regard for their old school and their unabated confidence in the Trustees. The cordiality with which when upon this business the Surveyors were received by the Lord Chancellor, the honest earnestness with which, declaring the benefit he had himself derived from the School, he expressed his anxious desire to promote its interests, and the very great confidence he exhibited in the integrity and sound judgement of the Trustees must, the Surveyors feel assured, obtain the respect and gratitude of the whole Company.

All which they submit to the Court of Assistants of the Worshipful Company of Mercers this 30th day of May 1851.

WILLIAM PALMER, S.A.
HULBERT WATHEN.

In consequence of which Report at a Court of Assistants of the Worshipful Company of Mercers held at their Hall on Friday the 13th June

1851, the Report of the Surveyor-Accountant and Surveyor-Assistant of Saint Paul's School in reference to the proposed gifts of the Lord Chancellor and Sir Charles M. Clarke, Bart., for the endowment of certain prizes at Saint Paul's School, as laid before the Court on the 30th ulto., was taken into consideration; and it was resolved "that the Report be received and the recommendations therein contained carried into effect, the Surveyor-Accountant and Surveyor-Assistant having been requested to communicate to the Lord Chancellor and Sir Charles M. Clarke so much of their report as immediately relates to their individual gifts."

KEEN SCHOLARSHIP.

This Scholarship, which is really a Prize, was founded in the year 1868 by Miss Harriett Barber, who bequeathed £1,000 to the Mercers' Company to found a Scholarship for a youth to be sent to Oxford or Cambridge and to be called Keen's Scholarship. In the year 1868 £1,000 New 3 per Cent. Annuities were transferred by her Executors to the Official Trustees of Charitable Funds, and the dividends thereon, amounting to £30 a year, have since been appropriated as an annual prize for the best Mathematical Scholar in the School, at the time of his proceeding to the University, independently of any Exhibition awarded in the usual way after the Apposition.

 1663. February 3 and 4.¹⁰
 1664. January 31 and February 1.
 1665. February.¹¹

The School was closed in consequence of the Fire (see Fasti).

¹ Probably the father of Nath. and Rich. C., Exhibitioners, 1632 and 1634.

² Dr. Bromick, Mr. Calamy (probably E. Calamy, President of Sion College, 1650), Mr. Laure (? Launce), Mr. Barnaby, 4 Opposers at the choice of a new High Master (Langley). Forty shillings each. (A, 1639-40.)

³ Possibly Dr. Cornelius Burgess, at one time Chaplain to Charles I.

⁴ He received a present of forty shillings on February 4, 1645.

⁵ Probably Thomas Fuller (author of the Worthies) father of John F., who entered St. Paul's School 1653.

⁶ Dr. B. of Gray's Inn.

⁷ For the next 15 years the names of the Apposers are not given in the Accounts, nor in the Acts of Court:

in the Accounts for 1656-57 occurs a gift of forty shillings to Dr. Dickeson who was appointed Opposer (probably for 1655), but falling sick could not perform.

⁸ So in (A.) but clearly a mistake for 1658.

⁹ Dr. Wilkins and Dr. Outram were the Apposers (see Pepys' Diary, February 4). The former was Warden of Wadham College, Oxford, 1648-59, Prebendary of York, and afterwards Bishop of Chester, 1668-72: the latter was Prebendary of Westminster, died 1679.

¹⁰ Dr. Wilkins and one Mr. Smallwood were Apposers (see Pepys).

APPENDIX H.

THE SCHOOL FEAST.

According to Knight "the first General Meeting, or Feast of the Scholars, was on St. Paul's Day (January 25), 1660, or the year following. In the year 1664 it was intermitted till 1674: then revived again and continued till 1679."

It was again held in 1699, and appears to have continued pretty regularly till 1728, and on each occasion eight Paulines acted as stewards of the Feast. After this I find no record of it till 1755, when it was held for three years consecutively.

On most of these occasions the old and present boys appear to have met with some of the Mercers' Company in St. Paul's Cathedral on St. Paul's Day (January 25), when a Sermon was preached by an old Pauline, and a collection was made. Of this a portion was devoted to sending one or more Scholars to the University; a second part went in apprenticing fees; a third sum was devoted to procuring instruction for some of the boys in writing and arithmetic, while the balance was spent upon the restoration of the Library of the School, which had suffered severely in the Great Fire.

The entrance of the School upon its fourth century was celebrated by a Dinner in 1810, at which the Bishop of Salisbury (Fisher), Sir Philip Francis, K.B., Dr. Roberts (High Master), and others were present.

¹ Formerly Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge, Examiner in Mathematics to the University of London.

² Fellow and Assistant Tutor, Trinity College, Cambridge; see Admissions, September 17, 1858.

³ Professor of Mathematics, King's College, London; formerly Fellow and Lecturer, St. John's College, Cambridge.

⁴ Professor of French at Westminster School, Examiner for the Civil Service.

⁵ Professor of the French Language and Literature at King's College, London.

⁶ Head Master of the French School, Christ's Hospital; Examiner to the University of London, &c.

⁷ Professor of Chemistry at the London Institution; Sec. Chem. Soc.

In 1864 the Old Pauline Dinner was revived by the exertions of Risdon Darracott Bennett, of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. It was repeated in 1865: and since then the Feast has been held biennially under the care of Dorset Eccles, of the British Museum (who succeeded to the Secretaryship on Mr. Bennett's untimely death), assisted by John Shearman, Solicitor, of New Inn.

PREACHERS AT THE FEAST.¹

1675. Richard Meggott. (See page 44.)
 At St. Michael's, Cornhill: on Proverbs xix. 2.
 There is no list of Stewards.
 In the Sermon, which is full of learned quotations, he pleads "for a Library furnished with the choicest books of Philological learning burned by the late dreadful Fire, which is not yet recruited," and for "several poor children taught there above the number that the foundation alloweth anything to at the University."
- Benjamin Calamy. (See page 51.)
 Neither date nor place mentioned in his works: on 1 Cor. xiii. 4—7.
 There is no list of Stewards.
1678. William Wyat. (See page 50.)
 At the Guildhall Chapel: on 1 Cor. viii. 1.
 There is no list of Stewards.
 The Sermon is dedicated to Henry (Compton), Bishop of London. He says "How many great authors' ink makes nothing but blots upon another's name."
1697. William Nichols. (See page 57.)
 "Upon the reviving their ancient anniversary meeting." On Acts xxii. 3: On the advantage of a learned education, preached in St. Paul's Cathedral, on St. Paul's Day.
 "On the first anniversary of this blessed Saint after the rebuilding of his temple where we remember to have played our childish pastimes among its desolate ruins."
1698. John Pulleyn. (See page 53.)
 On Acts xx. 35: he makes an appeal "for offerings to be placed with the Stewards."
1699. Samuel Bradford. (See page 53.)
 On 2 Tim. iii. 14, 15. On the description and benefits of a regular education.
 This is the first Sermon which I have found in print with a list of Stewards prefixed.
1700. William Stonestreet. (See page 56.)
 On 1 Cor. x. 31.
1701. William Bramston. (See page 54.)
 On Jan. 26, on Romans xii. 11. A short Apology for Humane Learning: it has a bitter dedication prefixed on the general neglect of Sermons.

¹The Sermons were preached in St. Paul's Cathedral on St. Paul's Day (January 25), unless otherwise stated. The dates are reckoned according to the Old Style.

1702. Robert Newton. (See page 59.)
On Proverbs xxii. 6: On Religion and Learning, or the happy effects of an early education.
1707. William Smith. (See page 59.)
On January 26: on Proverbs iv. 13: On the Benefit of Good Instruction.
1708. Henry Stonestreet. (See page 59.)
I have not found this Sermon in print; but there is a list of Stewards for this year in Knight.
1709. Richard Chambre. (See page 60.)
On 1 Cor. x. 24: On the Duty of being Public-spirited.
1710. Edward Tennison. (See page 60.)
On 1 Cor. x. 24: On the Excellency and Usefulness of a Public Spirit.
1712. John Leng. (See page 58.)
On January 26: On 1 Cor. xii. 31.
1713. Samuel Dod. (See page 62.)
On 1 Peter iv. 10: On the Right Use of the Manifold Gifts of God.
Of the School he says, "that as we have received it from our predecessors so we be careful to hand it down to posterity, one of the brightest ornaments of this great city."
1714. Matthew Postlethwayte. (See page 65.)
On Heb. v. 12: On the Necessity of Understanding the Grounds and Principles of Religion.
He speaks of "my most honoured uncle, for sixteen years last past, High Master": of the School as "the most sumptuous and beautiful buildings in their kind that this City affords"; wherein instruction is given in "Grammar, Rhetoric, and the Latin, Greek, Hebrew, and Chaldee tongues": and adds that "our School was originally intended for the training up of youth in the principles of Religion as well as in Humane Learning."
1716. Clement Tookie. (See page 62.)
On Psalm xxiii. 1. The Sermon is dedicated to Sir Charles Cooke, Knt., Alderman and Sheriff, and Master of the Mercers' Company, Deputy Richard Chauncy, Surveyor of St. Paul's School, and the Wardens and Assistants of the Mercers' Company.
He says of himself, "I am a master in the School of my education."
1717. Samuel Knight. (See page 62.)
On St. Luke ii. 52. The Child Jesus, the great Exemplar of Youth. He alludes to the true dedication of the School (see Introduction), and gives in a note a list of distinguished Paulines, dead and living, with a special notice of the Duke of Marlborough.
1723. Matthias Mawson. (See page 67.)
At the revival of the Anniversary Meeting: On St. Matt. vii. 12. The Duty of doing as we would be done unto.
"The way to make this Meeting lasting as well as useful and serviceable would be to keep within the bounds of discretion and prudence; and not to suffer the expenses to run higher than what the occasion and decency require."

The money collected at the Feast for charitable uses amounted to £47 6s. 6d.¹

By the kindness of J. E. Gardner, Esq., I have examined one of the invitations issued for this Feast which is preserved in his Collection. On a square sheet of paper, below a picture of the School surrounded by mantlings, are these words:—"Sir,—You are desired to meet the Gentlemen educated at St. Paul's School in the said School by nine o'clock in the morning, the 25 January, 1723, being the Feast of the Conversion of St. Paul, from thence to go to the Cathedral of St. Paul, and after Sermon dine at Mercers' Hall in Cheapside." Then follow the names of the Stewards: Rev. Dr. S. Knight, Rev. Mr. A. A. Sykes, Rev. Mr. A. Clarke, Rev. Mr. Henry Parker, Benjamin Marriott, Esq., Mr. Samuel Herring, Mr. Charles Gardner, Mr. Richard Trubey, Jun. Below, "On receipt of this pay five shillings."

53."

On the seal are the arms of Colet and of the Deanery of St. Paul's.
1724. Arthur Ashley Sykes. (See page 66.)

On 1 Tim. ii. 5, 6.

The money collected at the Feast for charitable uses amounted to £42 15s. 6d.

1725. Alured Clarke. (See page 69.)

On Gal. vi. 10.

He mentions 1509 as the date of Foundation, and speaks of "a spirit of Emulation, the peculiar advantage of a Public place of Instruction."

The money collected was £40 16s.

1726. John Leng. (See page 58.)

I have not found this Sermon in print.

1727. Henry Parker. (See page 53.)

I have not found this Sermon in print.

1728. Thomas Hough. (See page 72.)

On Acts xxii. 3. The Happiness and Advantages of a Liberal and Virtuous Education.

He speaks of the School "which has supplied the Senate with a Speaker (Spencer Compton), and the camp with a General in whom courage, conduct, and success conspired to render him the boast and glory of our age, and the envy of all succeeding ages; that it has hitherto preserved an unsullied reputation as to virtue and morals; and that those fashionable gaieties (to say no worse of them), those vices and debaucheries which too visibly reign in those places of public education, have never been able to gain any considerable footing there."

The money collected was £41 16s. 3d.

¹ "St. Paul's School Feast kept last Saturday, at which several of the Bishops and other Persons of Distinction were present, near £50 was collected in the Bason, besides what was further expected to be sent in, for charitable Usea."—Reading Mercury, February 1, 1723.

1755. Jan. 25. Joseph Fearon. (See page 81.)

On Wisdom vii. 14.

1756. June 29. Daniel Bellamy. (See page 80.)

On Psalm cxii. 6.

He refers to previous Sermons by Calamy and Tennison.

1757. June 29. Thomas Fairchild. (See page 81.)

On Proverbs iii. 17.

"Our grateful sentiments must be extended to those who have provided to the enlarging this plan of education to a far superior degree, near twenty Exhibitions having been left to the disposal of the Mercers' Company for the benefit of the Students chosen to the Universities who might not otherwise have been able to have maintained themselves; the more peculiar of which are the benefactions of the Lord Campden, and the Lady North, and some others which though numerous in themselves this body have most prudently consolidated."

CHAIRMEN OF THE DINNERS.

APPENDIX I.

THE SCHOOL LIBRARY.

Was there any Library in Colet's Building?¹ It is impossible to speak positively, but I am inclined to think that what was originally the Chapel came to be used as a Library after the cessation of the services.

¹ It is stated in Notes and Queries (vol. xi., Second Series, p. 403) that "the Founder left to the School many good Books both in MS. and print, mostly Grammatical, in Hebrew, Greek, and Latin; they were destroyed in the Great Fire." I am not aware of any authority for this statement, but we do find that Colet bequeathed his copy of St. Jerome's works, and some others, to Master John Ban-brughe; "all suche bookes prynted as may be most necessary for his lernyng" to Thomas Lupeshed (i.e. Lupset) his scholar; his manuscripts to the disposition of his executors, and "all my bokes imprinted in paper I will also by them be disposed to poore studentes and especially to suche as hath bene scholars with me."—(Will, dated August 22, 1519.)

The earliest record of the purchase of a book is in the Accounts 1572-73: "Allowed Mr. Malim for a new Lexicon or Dictionary in Latin, Greek, Hebrew, French, Spanish, and High Dutch, always to remain as an implement to the Schole, well turned and bossed, xixs." The next notice is in 1582-83, when the first list of books occurs; Mr. Harrison being High Master.

For a reste (i.e. balance) of Books:—

Thesaurus Ling. Græc. Steph. in 5 vols.	£3 5s.
Thesaurus Ling. Lat. Steph. in 2 vols.	£2. ¹
Thesaurus Cowperi.	£1 4s.

The cost of these books is £14 8s.

"Whereof he (Mr. Harrison), received of the boys at their admission about £9 by his own confession." The School Account is therefore only charged with £5 8s.

These books following are given by Mr. Harrison:—

Commentar. Bezæ in Nov. Test.	14s.
Silvius Italicus with a commentary.	4s.
(Faernus?) Terentius with a commentary.	2s. ²

Nizolius (given by Master Harrison, Stationer).	12s.
An old Lexicon in the Schole before.	7s.

The sum is given as £3 and 12 pence.

² Perhaps identical with those mentioned in the Catalogue in Knight.

The next purchase of Books occurs in 1590-91 :—

Callipin's (i.e. Calepin's) Dictionary (Folio). £1 2s.
 Scapula his Lexicon. 17s.
 Tullie's Works; 2 vols (Folio). £1.
 Cowper's Dictionary (for the Lower School). 16s.

In 1614-15 another Cowper's Dictionary was bought for fifteen shillings; and in 1639-40 (probably on the appointment of Langley) eight Rider's "Dixonaries" and one great Lexicon for £5 10s. 6d.

In 1665-66 Crumlum was paid for making "a schedule of the Books in the School Study"; but within a few months came the Great Fire, in which Crumlum lost an "uncomparable" library;¹ and in all probability most of the books mentioned in his "Schedule" shared the common ruin.

Not all, however, for a Stephanus Greek Thesaurus is found in the 1724 catalogue, and is generally identified with that presented by Pepys² (December 24, 1662); probably to supply the place of the one bought in 1592; and further Nizolius, Budæus, and the Uranologion seem to have survived the conflagration.

Soon after the restoration of the School (1670), efforts were made to replenish the Library, for which a room (at the south end of the School) was now set apart in the new building; this room, however, is described in 1803 as dark, diminutive, and dirty, "where the Books are covered with dust and defaced by the boys with ink and erasures." Numerous individuals contributed Books; and the Stewards of the School Feast expended part of the money collected on Books, and are recorded among the benefactors of the Library in Knight's Life of Colet. In A new View of London (vol. ii. p. 709), published in 1708, it is mentioned that Mr. Davenport lately gave in books £20. See Knight (Benefactors of the Library), under date 1686.

In 1721 John Wyatt was paid £4 for setting the books of the Library in order; and in Knight's Life of Colet, published in 1724, a list of books then in the Library is given.

In 1741 Sir Nathaniel Lloyd (see page 58) left by will 50 guineas to the Library.

In 1742 Joseph Lodge received £12 9s. for binding and gilding books; and in 1743 the first printed catalogue of the Library was made, and Thomas White was paid for printing and stitching 300 catalogues of the Library £10 15s. In this catalogue (a copy of which is preserved in the British Museum), it is stated that "all or the greatest part of the books which have not the names of the benefactors annexed or references thereto, have been purchased by the Masters of the School with the surplus of the Candle money," the money, that is, that was contributed for providing wax candles to light the School according to the Founder's ordinance.

In 1756 the School Library was adorned with busts of Homer, Virgil, Milton, Bacon, Locke, and Newton, and to these were added in the following year a bust of Dr. Colet by Mr. Furnier, and busts of Nelson, Cambden (sic), the Duke of Marlborough, and Dr. Halley.

¹ Strype, in his edition of Stow, vol. i. p. 168, says that Cromleholme "lost an incomparable library; for he was very curious in books," and Pepys (September 26, 1666) says "Mr. Crumlum, all his books and household stuff burned—a very great loss."

² "Down to the School, where Dr. Crumlum did me much honour by telling many what a present I had made to the School, showing my Stephanus in 4 Vols., cost me £4 10s."—(Pepys, February 4, 1662-63).

In 1790 the Library is spoken of in the Gentleman's Magazine (vol. lx. part ii. page 586); as being, "upon the whole, on the decay."

In 1812 it was ordered that a catalogue should be made, though there is a printed catalogue dated 1809 in the Library. But it does not appear to have been ordered to be printed till 1815, when also a Stephani Thesaurus was ordered to be subscribed for. In 1814 (on the accession of Dr. Sleath) a list of Books required for the Library was presented, and a sum not to exceed £200 was allowed for their purchase; the annual charge for the Library was fixed in 1816 at £20.

In 1819 it was again ordered that the catalogue should be printed, which resulted in the catalogue of 1820.

In the New School (1824) a handsome Library was provided at the north end of the Great Schoolroom, occupying about two-thirds of the depth of the building, and in 1854 the eastern partition was removed and the room carried through to Old Change, giving a depth of nearly 35 feet.

In 1836 a fresh catalogue was made by Benjamin Jowett, Captain of the School (the present Master of Balliol), for which he received 100 guineas. To this catalogue a supplement was made in 1859. During the High-Mastership of Dr. Kynaston, and probably for many years previous (see page 52), the Captain of the School acted as Librarian, holding office only for a year; the continual change had a most detrimental effect upon the Library, to which all boys in the Eighth were allowed unlimited access, and in 1877, when the present Surmaster was appointed Honorary Librarian, he found more than 300 volumes needing repair; in addition to the loss of many books and separate volumes which could no longer be traced. Such treasures, however, as the Library still retains are now carefully preserved; and the whole of the Books having been catalogued and press-marked, it is hoped that further loss will be avoided.

The number of Books (including a good collection of French Classics), is now about 3,400; among which is a fairly complete series of Latin Grammars, beginning with the De Octo Oratoris Partium Constructione of 1515 (the gift of the present Librarian), and some valuable contributions towards a special Library of Miltonian Literature, such as Burns' copy of Milton's Poems (presented by John Watney, Esq.), and first editions of Paradise Lost and Paradise Regained (presented by O. C. V. Aldis, Esq.). In MSS. the Library is not rich; but it possesses the Founder's Abstract of the Hierarchies of Dionysius, presented by Robert Emmott in 1759.

APPENDIX K.

THE BUILDINGS AND SITE.

The discovery of a ground plan of the School (dated 1782) in the Crace Collection at the British Museum, and of another at Mercers' Hall (dated 1817), induces me to enter more particularly than I have done in the Introduction upon the question of the site of the School and the buildings erected on it at different times.

The site appears to have been previously occupied by bookbinders' shops, for we read in Monumenta Franciscana "at that tyme (1505) was lowe houses of boke bynderes wher nowe is the scole of Powles."

As to Colet's Building, he states that it was 122 feet long and 33 feet broad: now the ground plan of the Second Building is 120 feet long, and is 38 feet deep at the north and 27 feet at the south end; it is stated in Londina Illustrata that the front of the Second School was brought forward so as to be parallel to the eastern end of St. Paul's Churchyard (i.e. I suppose, the churchyards of St. Gregory and St. Faith), and this is confirmed by the plan of London made in 1667, which appears to show that what was subtracted in depth from the ground of the New School at the southern end was added at the northern boundary, the lines of frontage crossing one another about the middle of the block at an angle of ten degrees. Now I take it that Colet's School was a one-story building like its successor, with the chapel at its southern end (Colet's Deed, 1517) and the High Master's house at the north. I am inclined to think that the vestibule or porch for Catechumens formed part of the ground floor of the Master's house. The High Master's house must have adjoined the Surmaster's (called in Colet's Statutes "his lodging in Old Change"), for in 1576 a door "which bred much contention between Malym and Holden" was altered, and "the coming out of Malym's house into the School was turned another way through the vestibule."

For purposes of fixing the site I take it that we may consider the line of Old Change unaltered and the boundary line of the parish of St. Augustine which runs north and south through the middle of the present site as fixing the site of the old wall of the Close; I also assume that the northern limit of the School premises has not varied except that it was extended westward after the Fire some five feet, and eastward in the same line through the parish boundary to reach Old Change in 1824. This is at variance with the Ordnance Map which places the Bell Tower on the site of our (present) northernmost house; and though Stow states the Bell Tower formerly stood to the north of the School somewhere, it was clearly not its northern boundary, as Colet mentions the tenements of Alice Cruce and Andrew Renne as being respectively the southern and northern limits of his School building.

As for the Surmaster's lodging in the Old Change I am inclined to identify it with the Usher's house in ground plan of 1782, the size of which is 28 feet 1 inch along the front and 13 feet 9 inches in depth from the front to the parish line, while the two tenements which Colet left in Old Change were 28 feet 4 inches by 11 feet, the difference in depth being, I suppose, due to the disappearance of the wall of the Close.

What, then, were the buildings that stood upon this site? They certainly resembled the Second School (1670) in general outline, that is a low centre, with two high ends—at the south the chapel, at the north the High Master's house. In the schoolroom there were no bays or recesses, no dining-room or dormitory; but it could be divided by curtains. Every boy had his own proper seat on regularly-ascending tiers with gangways left between: "Each class contains 16, and the head boy in each class has a stall somewhat higher than the rest," says Erasmus, but Colet states that there were 153 seats in the School, and the division of the School into 5 classes of 18 and 3 lower ones of 21 boys is attributed (perhaps erroneously) to the Founder.

Judging from the Second School, there are not likely to have been more than 3 tiers of boys, which, on Erasmus's reckoning, gives 5 boys to a row in each class, the head boy sitting in the gangway; but on Colet's reckoning, and supposing that the School was seated on both sides as in the Second and Third Schools, we have 25 boys a row, requiring about 45 feet; to this we must add 10 feet at least for gangways, and we get a school of about 60 feet, leaving 60 feet to divide between the High Master's house and the chapel: this is about the proportion in the Second School, 33 feet being there given to the house at each end and 54 feet to the School. The High Master's seat was at the south end, and over it a painted figure (not, I believe, an image) of the Child Jesus (see Fasti 1556). The teaching was mainly oral, the boys having doubtless comparatively few books—and certainly no desks to write on.

Now for the interior of the High Master's house; its rooms are described as follows:—

The hall beneath; the kitchen; the Schoolmaster's chamber where he eateth and drinketh; the Schoolmaster's chamber next adjoining; the chamber over the kitchen; the uppermost chamber over the kitchen; the closet; the inner chamber; the middle garret.

For these rooms implements were supplied of which an inventory is given in the Accounts 1592–93 (Harrison, High Master).

In the fragment of the indenture between Mulcaster (Harrison's successor, 1596) and the Mercers on the subject of fixtures we have:—

The draught house (with three casements); the studdy at the stair head with shelves and a little glass window; the furthest garret towards the north; the next garret with a window to the east besides the window; the garret next the School; there was also a cellour and coole (coal) house, both apparently below the level of the street.

To compare with these lists we have Colet's description of the lodgings for the High Master (1518):—

The cellars beneath; the hall, kitchen, and buttery; over that, the whole story and chambers; in the roof, the little mid-chamber, and the galary on the south side; (the High Master is not to meddle with the story of chambers next-underneath the galaries).

Also the accommodation that Master Lilly could furnish to the suite of Charles V. (1522):—

One hall; four chambers, four featherbeds; one kitchen, and other necessities.

Finally, we have the following rooms mentioned in the School glazier's bill (1583–84):—

Master's dining chamber; maid's chamber; upper stairs; upper buttery; posing chamber; Master's chamber next the School; hall; borders' chamber; Master's chamber over the kitchen; buttery next the hall; Second Master's chamber; little paine (of glass) over the leads; study chamber; little chamber; kitchen and hall; lodge; study next the School; in the entry into the School.

I should add that Strype (1720) and Knight (1724) quote as existing "in the entrance between the School and the Master's house," the inscription: "Hoc vestibulo catechizentur pueri in fide moribusque Christianis neque non primis Grammatices Rudimentis instituuntur priusquam ad proximam hujus Scholæ classem admittantur," which is also quoted in "the little transcript" of the Statutes at Mercers' Hall.

The High Master's house appears, therefore, to have included originally

(1) the cellars and coal-house ; (2) on the ground floor, the vestibulum (as in the Second School), hall, kitchen, and buttery ; (3) then a first floor with dining room, &c. ; (4) a story with which the High Master was originally not to meddle, and (5) garrets or galleries which led out on to the roof (leads) of the School.

Of the Surmaster's house we have no record beyond the mention of "his lodging in Old Change" (Colet's Statutes), the door (of contention, 1576), the Second Master's chamber (glazier's bill) and the notice by Strype that, whereas the Surmaster had formerly lived in Old Change, in the Second School he had a house at the south end.

Of the Chaplain's residence we know that Colet directed that he should have his lodging in the New House (? Surmaster's) in Old Change or in the Master's lodging, but from the first recorded appointment he received an allowance for rent, until he got possession of one of the School outbuildings.

This outbuilding leant against the Cathedral, at the southern end of its eastern face, and was first the children's pissing-place, next (1573) a residence for the school porter, and finally (1588) a house for the Under Usher. It was raised in 1600, and was pulled down in 1620 ; and in 1621 it was resolved to admit none but unmarried men as candidates for Under Usher (when Alexander Gill, Junior, was elected).

There was also a public privy situated at the north-east angle of the Cathedral to which Paulines had access (see Fasti, 1575).

So much for the First School. This perished utterly in the Fire (1666) : the only known relic being the cesspool of the public privy.

Of the Second School we have the ground plan mentioned above (Crace, 1782), which corresponds exactly with the ground plan of the 1670 building, as far as we can judge, except that in 1676 a house in Old Change had been "laid into" the High Master's house. The new building was 120 feet long, the houses at each end were 33 feet, leaving 54 feet for the School front which was set back about 2 feet, in front of which projected a low iron railing, inside which is placed (in Ackermann) a watchman's box. The School has six windows in the front but no door. The entrance to the School was through the "Vestibulum," which was situated on the ground floor of the High Master's house—a fact curiously confirmed by this story (of which I have twice received independent evidence), that the late High Master (Dr. Kynaston) required all new boys to "enter the School" not from the playground but from his house. There was probably also an entrance from Old Change as shown in the plan of 1817.

Of this exterior we have views in Knight, 1724, Strype's Stow, 1754 (in the background of a view of the Cathedral from the north-west), in the Gentleman's Magazine, 1805 (though not published till 1818), European Magazine, 1807, and Ackermann (1816), and many more, the finest being that by B. Howlet "engraved from a drawing by and in the possession of Mr. John Baker" (published in Wilkinson's Londina Illustrata). The earliest appears to be that of which there is a copy in the British Museum, showing a lantern at the top of the School.

Of the interior we have the view in Ackermann : there are three tiers of seats, no desks ; the seats are divided into eight blocks, four a side ; the High Master appears to face northwards, sitting at the southern end ; so do also the Surmaster and Usher, but the newly-introduced Assistant to the High Master faces south, taking charge of the Vth and VIth classes. At the southern end is the bust of the Founder, with busts of Thicknesse and Roberts, the late High Masters, on either side; there was a library at that end of the room, but there is no sign of a door in the picture.

The entrance to the schoolroom was by semicircular doors at the northern end from the vestibule; over these was a semicircular balcony opening into the High Master's private study; the eastern side of the room was occupied by the First, Fourth, Fifth, and Eighth Forms; the corresponding Forms facing them on the west; between the Fourth and Fifth Form seats was a door in the eastern wall leading into a back yard, where were the School outbuildings, and which communicated with the Usher's house: the door into the Library which occupied part of the ground floor of the Surmaster's house (as the vestibule did of the High Master's) was in the south-west corner of the School.

With regard to the houses at each end, they seem exactly similar: a width of three windows; a ground floor, three floors above, and a garret. There is apparently only one garret in 1724 and 1754, but in the later engravings there are three windows in the roof and the balustrade which surmounted the single garret has disappeared: this alteration is said in Londina Illustrata to have been made in 1783 (see Fasti, 1782). In 1724 the private houses are represented with stone and iron balconies before them and the entrances have hatches to the doors; the middle window of the ground floor is far from the ground (also in 1754), but it appears lower in the three later prints. The High Master's house was 38 feet in depth at its northern end, and so continued for about 20 feet; the remaining 13 feet of frontage had a depth of 31 feet. The Surmaster's house had a depth of 28 feet.

The house of the Usher, in Old Change, just adjoined the High Master's, its north-west corner touching his south-eastern; its back was against the School's eastern wall. The frontage was 28 feet 1 inch, and its depth varied from 22 feet 1 inch at the north to 17 feet 8 inches at the south. There was a yard both at the southern and northern ends of this house. These would, according to my conjecture, represent the tenements of Reginald Jewe and John Evers respectively in Colet's Will. Of outbuildings belonging to this period we hear nothing, except the cleaning of a "necessary house" in 1705-6, which was probably situated in the southern yard in Old Change.

In 1823 the Second School was taken down and the present building erected. By a private Act obtained in 1818, the Mercers were empowered to purchase land lying within 40 yards of the School to the amount of 8,000 superficial feet. Under this Act they bought certain plots on the western side of Old Change from the Corporation of London for £2,908 10s., and other premises from the Bishop of London in St. Paul's Churchyard for £4,074 18s. 2d., thus obtaining a compact block about 240 feet in length, and sloping in depth from 44 feet at its northern to 27 feet at its southern end. On this they erected the present School, situated above an open cloister, and four houses, two at either end, for the Masters. There is no need to describe its exterior, nor the Masters' houses; and outbuildings it has none. The interior of the School differed from its predecessor in this, that there were four tiers of seats, three of them with desks in front; the High Master sat at the northern instead of the southern end, and the other three Masters faced him. The Library was at the northern end of the schoolroom, on the first floor of the High Master's house.

It only remains to add that wax candles, according to the Founder's Ordinance, remained in use in the School till 1854, when gas chandeliers were put in, which were subsequently exchanged for sunlights. In 1854 the upper class-room was taken out of the High Master's house, access being given by a spiral iron staircase in the north-east corner of the schoolroom; the Library was also enlarged, and after a time the little room below the Library, at the northern end of the playground, was used as a class-room. The busts of Thicknesse and Roberts do not appear to have been replaced beside the Founder in the Third School, but remained in the High Master's house. The shields with the names of famous Paulines were put up in 1847. At one time the winter speeches were made on a platform at the southern end of the schoolroom; round which the audience entered through two narrow passages right and left. At the Apposition the speeches were delivered from the northern end, the galleries erected for the examination of the ten seniors precluding the erection of the winter platform.

Before concluding, I must notice an extraordinary statement of the Commissioners of 1820 that "a piece of land at the corner of the Churchyard and Watling Street and another piece of land adjoining on which stands a Charity School¹ are supposed to be the scite of the Gr. School called Paul's School with four shops under it (Colet's Will) and 'two tenements in Old Change.'"

If so, Colet's very careful description of his property was singularly inaccurate, for he gives the Grammar School, &c., as 55 feet east to west and 20 feet north to south, which totally disagrees with the plots chosen by the Commissioners. I have already provided for "the two tenements in Old Change," as the "Usher's house" of the Second School. For the rest I believe that "the piece of land at the corner of the Churchyard and Watling Street" represents so much of it as was left after widening the thoroughfare after the Fire; the eastern boundary of the four shops was Hichcock's tenement (not Old Change or St. Augustine's Church), which may be represented by the little piece which lay between this plot and Old Change; and though the ground is now only 37 feet by 13 feet at the east and 22 feet 8 inches at the west, its curtailment may have arisen in the way I have suggested: if I am right, this would carry St. Augustine's gate a little further west than the Ordnance Map.

¹ The Charity School is shown in the plan of 1782, facing Old Change, 57 feet from north to south, 15 feet deep at its northern and 12 at its southern end; it occupied rather more both northwards and southwards than the site of the back rooms of the present Surmaster's house, and is quite detached from the other piece of land referred to.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

Page 2, line 2.—"On the site of an older School": for this statement (which follows previous writers) there is certainly no warrant. Colet in his Will (Appendix A—II.) expressly mentions an older School as occupying a site quite distinct from his new buildings.

Page 2, line 34.—Additional ground "to the North": this is an error due to the position assigned to the Bell Tower on the Ordnance Map;—what additional ground was acquired was towards the east (Old Change) and south.

“From Paul’s I went, and it has generally been assumed that he was a chorister of the Cathedral: this, however, need not have prevented his being also a Pauline (see Fasti, 1584), and it is said that in the original MS. of his autobiography there was an additional stanza in which he referred to Lily as “pædagogus.”

Page 22, line 5.—“One Gryndall” was more probably a William Gryndal, “the dear and intimate friend, colleague, and pupil of Roger Ascham” (Hook). He died in 1548.

He was a staunch Nonconformist, and went to America in 1686, where he was Pastor of Bristol, Rhode Island. It is said of him “that hardly ever a more universally learned man trod the American strand.” As he was returning to Europe in 1691 he was captured by the French and died at St. Malo. He was the author of Chronicon Castrense, Orbis Miraculum, Contemplations on Mortality, Dissertation on the Probable Conversion and Restoration of the Jews, The Joy of Faith, some Sermons, and a portion of the Theatrum Historicum (1662).¹
